RE: Request for authorization to make copies of confidential information, document 13466-02

On November 28, 2002, staff held an audit exit meeting for an audit entitled "Regulatory Assessment Fee Investigation concerning Qwest Communications Corporation and its Affiliates (Qwest) for the Forty-Two Months ended June 30, 2002, Audit No. 02-211-3-1." Staff and Qwest attended the meeting.

At that audit exit meeting with Qwest, the PSC staff audit manager inadvertently provided the utility with an incomplete copy of the "sensitive" material retained by the auditor.

On December 19, 2002, the "sensitive" material was filed with a temporary confidential status as document 13466-02.

The utility needs a complete copy of the material to file a complete claim for confidential treatment.

Therefore, we request that you authorize the Bureau of Records and Hearing Services to make a copy of document 13466-02 and have the Bureau mail this copy to:

Mr. Oliver Parsons filed complaint number 505554T with the Division of Consumer Affairs complaining about reaching a busy signal or long hold times when calling BellSouth's customer service number. To find out if Mr. Parsons experience was isolated or if others we also experiencing the same problems, I requested that BellSouth provide average answer times on a daily basis for the month of December 2002 which is the month Mr. Parsons experienced the problems.

BellSouth filed the document confidentially and it is assigned document number 02045-03. Therefore, I request permission to review the document.

RE: Request to Review Confidential Information Filed in Response to MMS Staff's Data Request Regarding Verizon's IntraLATA Toll Market Share

On March 5, 2002, the Commission approved Verizon's Petition for Approval to Revise Customer Contact Protocol (Docket No. 011497-TL) based, in part, on statistics provided by Verizon showing that the intraLATA toll market is highly competitive. As part of its evaluation of Verizon's market after the Commission's decision, staff requested presubscription data from Verizon. On August 27, 2003, Verizon filed its response for data from December, 2002, and March and June, 2003, as confidential. Just as an FYI... in the near future a notice for the above-referenced rules will be filed with CCA for distribution. The industry distribution is Local Exchange Telephone Companies, Interexchange Telephone Companies, Shared Tenant Telephone Companies and Alternative Local Exchange Telephone Companies. If CCA could issue it within 5 working days of filing that would be great. Thanks!

Linda,

I need the following subpoena request sent to the two former divisions of AT&T: AT&T Wireless and Comcast Cable Communications, Inc. (f/k/a AT&T Broadband). I will hand-deliver the attachment because it contains an SSN.

I need to know if the person named in the attachment was an employee of the company at any time, and if so, I need to know if the details of the employment information provided in the attachment are correct.

AT&T Wireless may be served via facsimile to 1-888-938-4715. If necessary, the AT&T Wireless Business Security Division may be reached at 1-800-635-6840.

Comcast may be served via mail at its registered agent:

Comcast Cable Communications, Inc.

Dear Mr. Davidson:

This letter is to follow-up on our conversation of Tuesday, March 11, 2003, regarding Rule 25-4.070(2), Florida Administrative Code, and your concern that a company's refusal to repair outages on Sunday could be detrimental to customers.

First, let me begin by providing the text of Rule 25-4.070(2), Florida Administrative Code:

(2) Sundays and Holidays:

(a) Except for emergency service providers, such as the military, medical, police, and fire, companies are not required to provide normal repair service on Sundays. Where any repair action involves a Sunday or holiday, that period shall be excepted when computing service objectives, but not refunds for OOS conditions.

(b) Service interruptions occurring on a holiday not contiguous to Sunday will be treated as in paragraph (2)(a) of this rule. For holidays contiguous to a Sunday or another holiday, sufficient repair forces shall be scheduled so that repairs can be made if requested by a subscriber.

In accordance with the above referenced rule, local exchange companies, such as Sprint, are not required to restore outages on Sunday.

You have, however, indicated a desire to pursue a change to this rule. In order to do so, you would need to file a Petition that complies with Rule 28-103.006, Florida Administrative Code. I have included a copy of this Rule, along with the other pertinent rule provisions addressing the rulemaking process, with this letter. As stated in this Rule, you will need to include your name, address, and telephone number in the Petition, and explain which Rule you would like to see changed and why you would like to see the Rule changed. In addition, you must clearly explain how the rule affects you such that you seek a change. The original, signed Petition should be sent to the

CHAPTER 28-103 RULEMAKING

- 28-103.001 Advance Notice of Agency Rulemaking Proceedings.
- 28-103.002 Rule Development Workshops.
- 28-103.003 Negotiated Rulemaking.
- 28-103.004 Public Hearing.
- 28-103.005 Evidentiary Proceeding During Rulemaking.
- 28-103.006 Petitions to Initiate Rulemaking.

28-103.001 Advance Notice of Agency Rulemaking Proceedings.

Any person may file a written request with the agency to be given advance notice of agency proceedings to adopt, amend, or repeal a rule, as provided in Section 120.54(3)(a)3., F.S. The written request may specify that advance notice is requested of all agency rulemaking proceedings, or of only those agency rulemaking proceedings involving specific subjects.

Specific Authority 120.54(5) FS. Law Implemented 120.54(2)(a), (3)(a) FS. History—New 4-1-97.

28-103.002 Rule Development Workshops.

(1) Whenever requested in writing by any affected person, the agency must either conduct a rule development workshop prior to proposing rules for adoption or the agency head must explain in writing why a workshop is unnecessary. When rule development workshops are conducted in various regions of the state, they may be conducted either in person or through communications media technology as set out in Chapter 28-109, F.A.C.

(2) The agency should consider conducting a rule development workshop whenever a workshop would help the agency understand and address concerns of affected persons. The agency should consider the following factors in determining whether to conduct a rule development workshop:

- (a) The complexity or controversial nature of issues being addressed.
- (b) Whether rules being considered for adoption have an impact on regulated interests.
- (c) Whether rules being considered for adoption involve people with competing interests.
- (d) Whether rules being considered for adoption relate to emerging policies for which investigation of the factual basis for regulatory alternatives is required.

Specific Authority 120.54(5) FS. Law Implemented 120.54(2)(c), (5) FS. History—New 4-1-97.

28-103.003 Negotiated Rulemaking.

(1) The agency may develop rules through negotiated rulemaking. Negotiated rulemaking is a process that uses a committee of designated representatives to draft a mutually acceptable proposed rule. The agency should consider the following factors in determining whether to use negotiated rulemaking:

- (a) Whether there is a need for a rule;
- (b) Whether there are identifiable multiple interests that will be affected by the rule;
- (c) Whether a balanced committee of interested persons who are willing to negotiate in good faith and who can represent identified interests can be assembled;
- (d) Whether there is a reasonable likelihood that a committee can reach a consensus within a fixed period of time;
- (e) Whether negotiated rulemaking processes will unreasonably delay implementing legislation;
- (f) Whether the agency has resources, including technical assistance, to commit to support negotiated rulemaking;
- (g) Whether the agency will use the consensus of the committee as the basis for proposing a rule, consistent with its statutory responsibilities.

(2) When the agency chooses to use negotiated rulemaking, it shall publish a notice in the Florida Administrative Weekly. The notice shall include:

- (a) An announcement that the agency intends to convene a negotiated rulemaking proceeding;
- (b) A description of the subject and scope of the rule to be developed;
- (c) In addition to the requirements of Section 120.54(2)(d)2., F.S., a list of the rulemaking committee members, including their addresses and business telephone numbers;
- (d) A schedule for completing the work of the committee;
- (e) A statement of how persons who believe that their interests are not adequately represented may apply to participate on the committee.

(3) The agency shall respond in writing to requests for membership setting forth reasons for granting or denying the requests.

(4) The negotiating committee shall be chaired by a neutral facilitator or mediator. The facilitator/mediator shall serve subject to the approval of the committee.

(5) The negotiating committee shall report the results of its deliberations to the agency within the time frame specified in the notice of negotiated rulemaking.

25-22.017 Rulemaking Proceeding -- Adoption.

(1) At a public meeting, the Commission shall consider the record, the proposed rule, timely exceptions to the presiding officer's final recommended version, if permitted, and the recommendation of the presiding officer. The Commission may also question staff and other persons as part of its deliberations prior to adopting, rejecting or modifying the proposed rule.

(2) Oral argument and petitions for reconsideration are not appropriate to the rulemaking process. However, any interested person may petition the Commission after a rule is adopted or amended, for initiation of rulemaking proceedings pursuant to Rule 28-103.006, to amend or otherwise modify the adopted rule or amendment.

RE: Miami Beach Pay Telephone Ordinance Case: Florida Public Telecommunications Association, Inc. v. City of Miami Beach, No. 01-15996 (11th Cir., February 13, 2003)

In 1999, the Florida Public Telecommunications Association, Inc. (FPTA), an organization of pay telephone service providers, filed suit against the City of Miami Beach (City) challenging the validity of ordinances enacted to control the placement, structure and appearance of pay phones in the City. Two different ordinances were involved, a "Zoning Ordinance" that purported to control pay phones on private property and a "Right-of-Way Ordinance" that addressed pay phone location on City rights-of-way. To enlighten the courts on its view of pay phone regulation in Florida, the Commission filed an amicus brief in the original proceedings in federal district court and in the subsequent appeal to the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals

On February 13, 2003, the Eleventh Circuit issued it opinion in the appeal. The appeals court found, as had the district court, that the Zoning Ordinance's regulation of pay phone location on private property was totally preempted by the Commission's jurisdiction under Chapter 364, Florida Statutes. Said Judge Fay: "[T]he Miami Beach Zoning Ordinance which regulated pay phones located on private property is preempted in its entirety under Florida state law." Slip. Op. at 10. End of Story.

The Right-of-Way Ordinance was another matter. The statutory authority underlying that ordinance is Section 337.401(3)(b), Florida Statutes. That statute recognizes the right of municipalities and counties to "regulate and manage" their roads and rights-of-way, including placement or maintenance of communications facilities, provided certain conditions are met. The Court concluded that the City could regulate pay phones if the following tests were met:

MEMORANDUM

March 13, 2003

Page -2-

...[F]or a regulation over a telecommunications company's facilities in a municipal and county road or the public rights-of-way to be valid, the regulation must be (1) related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in municipal and county roads or the public rights-of-way; (2) reasonable and non-discriminatory; and (3) necessary to the management of such roads and public rights-of-way. Fla. Stat. §337.401(b).

Id. at 12

Judge Fay applied this analysis to find various provisions of the Right-of-Way Ordinance valid as not preempted by Chapter 364 or otherwise valid because they did not raise any preemption issues. Among those upheld were

Section 6(c)(Public Works Director could make regulations pertaining to pay phone permits and make regulations regarding construction, installation, operation, testing, repair, etc. of pay phones);

Section 7(a)(Public Works Director to issue or deny pay phone permit within 60 days of application);

Section 8(f) (City could ban placement of pay phones on rights-of-way in Single or Multi-Family Residential Districts as defined in the Zoning Ordinance);

Sections 9(b), 9(d), and (9)(e) (City could require certain types of enclosures for pay phones, require the owner of the phones to seek waivers from the Commission to block incoming calls, and regulate how external appearance of phones must be maintained), and

Section 9(e)(7)(City could ban all advertising on pay phones [reversed district court on this point]).

Id. at 12-21.

The Eleventh Circuit reversed the district court's finding that Section 8(d) of the Ordinance was valid. That Section prohibited the placement of pay phones "within one hundred feet of street addresses where there is substantial criminal activity." Id. at 16-17. The Court found this section invalid because it did not establish criteria to show a connection between the specific pay phone and the criminal activities. At the same time, the Court upheld Section 8(g) which allowed the City to remove pay phones found to be a "threat to the health and welfare of the community." This part of the Ordinance, the Court said, established the necessary connection between the phone and the threatening activity. Id. at 18-19.

The Eleventh Circuit's ruling is probably the end of this long running battle, as chances for further review are slim. The Court's interpretation of the 337.401(b)(3) standards seems pretty liberal; however, the ruling only addresses the specific ordinance enacted by Miami Beach and it does not appear that such ordinances are common, at least at this point.

A copy of the opinion is attached.

Appeals from the United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida

(February 13, 2003)

Before WILSON and FAY, Circuit Judges, and MILLS*, District Judge.

FAY, Circuit Judge:

*Honorable Richard Mills, United States District Court Judge for the Central District of Illinois, sitting by designation.

This appeal presents primarily three questions: (1) whether the Florida Public Service Commission has exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of pay phones located on private property under section 364.01, Florida Statutes; (2) whether a municipality has jurisdiction to regulate pay phones located in the public rights-of-way under section 364.01, Florida Statutes; and (3) if a municipality can regulate pay phones located in the public rights-of-way, then what constitutes a reasonable and non-discriminatory regulation related thereto.

We agree with the district court's decision granting summary judgment in favor of the City of Miami Beach as to the city's jurisdiction to regulate pay phones located in the public rights-of-way. Specifically, we affirm the district court's decision that all of sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8 (except for 8(d)), 11, 12, 13, 15, 16-20 and 9(a)-(e)(6) of Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 95-3005, as amended by Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 96-3041, are reasonable and non-discriminatory, and necessary for the management of pay phones within the public rights-of-way. We also find that all of sections 5, 10, and 14 of Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 95-3005 are not within the limits of the law as pertaining to the city's regulation of pay phones. However, we disagree with the district court's decision that subsection 9(e)(7) of Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 95-3005 concerning the regulation of advertising on pay phones in the public rights-of-way was not within the city's jurisdiction. In addition, we find that section 8(d) of Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 95-3005, concerning criminal activities in the areas of pay phones installations and in public rights-of-way is not proper. In sum, we conclude that the City of Miami Beach may regulate advertising on pay phones located in the public rights-of-way and consequently, that subsection 9(e)(7) of Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 95-3005 is valid and proper under the law. Lastly, we agree with the district court's decision that Florida state law preempts Miami Beach, Fla. Am. Ordinances 89-2665 §§ 6-21(B)(2)(d) and 89-2665 6-21(B)(4)(c) and consequently the Florida Public Service Commission has exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of pay phones located on private property. Thus, we AFFIRM in part and REVERSE in part the district court's judgment.

I. Background

Appellant and Cross-Appellee, the City of Miami Beach ("Miami Beach"), enacted zoning ordinances in an effort to restrict and to regulate pay phones located on private and public property within the city. Miami Beach enacted these zoning ordinances with the dual purpose of protecting the city's unique aesthetic qualities as well as ensuring public safety. The zoning ordinances involved in this appeal are Miami Beach, Fla. Am. Ordinances 89-2665 §§ 6-21(B)(2)(d) and 89-2665 6-21 (B)(4)(c) (collectively the "Zoning Ordinance") and Miami Beach, Fla.

Ordinance 95-3005, as amended by Miami Beach, Fla. Ordinance 96-3041 (“Right-of-Way Ordinance”). The Zoning Ordinance concerns the regulation of pay phones located on private property whereas the Right-of-Way Ordinance concerns the regulation of pay phones located in the public rights-of-way. In relevant sections, the Right-of-Way Ordinance sets forth a series of requirements: Section 4 requires pay phone operators to obtain a permit; Section 5 requires compensation for the issuance of the permit; Section 7 dictates the grounds for an operator’s use of streets and sidewalks; Section 8 governs the location and placement of the pay phones; Section 9 covers the installation, maintenance, and technical requirements; Section 10 subjects existing pay phones to a retroactive permit fee; Section 11 requires operators to take out bonds to cover potential damage; Section 12 requires indemnity insurance; Section 13 reserves Miami Beach’s police power; and Section 14 limits transfers, assignments and subleases.

§§ 4-13. Appellee and Cross-Appellant, Florida Public Telecommunications Association, Inc. (“FPTA”), an association of pay phone vendors in Florida, challenged Miami Beach’s Zoning Ordinance and Right-of-Way Ordinance on the grounds that they were preempted by state and federal law as well as the United States and Florida Constitutions. Both parties filed motions for summary judgment. The district court granted summary judgment to Miami Beach in part and to FPTA in part. Miami Beach appeals the district court's findings of preemption and the unreasonableness of subsection 9(e)(7) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance and FPTA cross-appeals the district court's findings of non-preemption and the validity of certain sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance.

Miami Beach also appeals the district court's decision that the Florida Public Service Commission ("FPSC") has exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of pay phones located on private property.

FPTA appeals the district court's decision that a municipality has jurisdiction to regulate telecommunications companies' facilities, including pay phones located in the public rights-of-way. The district court concluded that municipalities and counties, retained under Florida state law, the power to manage the "placement or maintenance of facilities" in the public rights-of-way. Fla. Stat. § 337.401(3)(b). Additionally, the district court found that pay phones are telecommunications companies facilities and their location in the public rights-of-way subjected them to regulation by Miami Beach. In determining whether the regulations in the Right-of-Way Ordinance were permissible, the district court applied a three-prong test as set forth in section 337.401(3)(b), Florida Statutes.

The district court also found that sections 5, 10, 14 and subsection 9(e)(7) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance were not permissible exercises of Miami Beach's authority to regulate the public rights-of-way under Florida state law because section 5 was discriminatory and sections 10, 14 and subsection 9(e)(7) were not related to the placement or maintenance of pay phones or necessary to the management of public rights-of-way. Consequently, those sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance were held to be invalid. The district court concluded that the remaining sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance were related to the placement or maintenance of pay phones, were reasonable and non-discriminatory, and were necessary to manage the public rights-of-way and thus were valid. Both parties appeal the district court's decisions regarding the validity of certain sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance. Both parties agree, however, that the district court applied the correct three-prong test in determining whether sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance were permissible.

FPTA challenges the district court's findings that certain sections of 2(1) and 6(c) and all of sections 3(a), 7(a), 8(d)-(g), 9(b), 9(d) and 9(e) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance are related to the placement or maintenance of pay phones and within the city's authority to regulate.

The FPSC also filed an amicus brief arguing that the district court erred in finding that certain sections of the Right-of-Way Ordinance were not preempted by state law. FPSC contends that sections 8(d)-(g), 9(b), 9(d) and 9(e) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance exceed the scope of the city's authority to regulate public rights-of-way under its policing power and conflict with the FPSC's exclusive jurisdiction to regulate telecommunications companies. Miami Beach also appeals the district court's decision that subsection 9(e)(7) of the Rights-of-Way Ordinance was void because it was not related to the maintenance of pay phones and that the regulation of advertising on pay phones in the public rights-of-way was not within the city's jurisdiction under state law.

II. Standard of Review

We review de novo the district court's grant of a motion for summary judgment. Lewis v. Brunswick Corp., 107 F.3d 1494, 1498 (11th Cir. 1997), cert. granted, 522 U.S. 978, 118 S.Ct. 439, 139 L.Ed.2d 337 (1997), cert. dismissed, 523 U.S. 1113, 118 S.Ct. 1793, 140 L.Ed.2d 933 (1998).

III. Discussion

A. Preemption of Miami Beach's Zoning Ordinance

Miami Beach argues that a state agency's authority to regulate the location of pay phones on private property must be based upon a specific grant of authority by the legislature in the enabling statute which created the agency's power. The city contends that the Florida Legislature failed to grant the FPSC this explicit power. Miami Beach relies primarily on Southwest Florida Water Management District v. Save the Manatee Club, Inc., 773 So. 2d 594 (Fla. 1st DCA 2000) to support this proposition that the Florida Legislature must specifically grant to the FPSC the authority to regulate the location of pay phones located on private property in the enabling statute. A reading of the enabling statute shows that the Florida Legislature granted to the FPSC broad and exclusive powers to regulate telecommunications companies. Specifically, section 364.01, Florida Statutes grants to FPSC the exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of telecommunications companies within Florida. BellSouth Telecommunications, Inc. v. Town of Palm Beach, 252 F.3d 1169, 1177 (11th Cir. 2001). The language of the statute leaves no doubt about the broad and exclusive powers granted to the FPSC to regulate telecommunications companies including their services and facilities. In contrast, in Southwest Florida Water Management District, the court concluded that the Florida Legislature did not grant to the Southwest Florida Water Management District (the “District”) such broad powers but only very specific and limited powers. We find no merit in this argument about the extent of the enabling statute in this case.

It is also clear that the limitations to this broad authority are very specific.

In relevant part, section 364.01(2), Florida Statutes provides that:

It is the legislative intent to give exclusive jurisdiction in all matters set forth in this chapter to the Florida Public Service Commission in regulating telecommunications companies, and such preemption shall supersede any local or special act or municipal charter where any conflict of authority may exist. However, the provisions of this chapter shall not affect the authority and powers granted in s. 166.231(9) or s. 337.401.

Since the Florida Legislature granted the FPSC exclusive jurisdiction to regulate telecommunication companies, it clearly has the power to regulate pay phones and their locations on private property within Florida. See Teleco Communications Co. v. Clark, 695 So. 2d 304 (Fla. 1997). We find it unpersuasive to argue that the Florida Legislature should have itemized the powers of the FPSC when it gave it such broad and exclusive authority over telecommunications companies.

The only limitation on this exclusive jurisdiction to regulate telecommunications companies relevant to this case is that municipalities and counties retain the right to manage their roads and public rights-of-way pursuant to their police power. Section 337.401(3)(b), Florida Statutes, states that “[e]ach municipality and county retains the authority to regulate and manage municipal and county roads or rights-of-way in exercising its police power.” Thus, municipalities’ and counties’ right to regulate their roads and the public rights-of-way allow them to regulate telecommunications companies’ facilities including pay phones located in those spaces. It is undisputed that pay phones are facilities of telecommunications companies as those words are used in the statute. Thus, as the district court correctly found, the enabling statute broadly granted the FPSC exclusive jurisdiction over all matters except for those involving the management of municipal or county roads and the public rights-of-way. Consequently, the Miami Beach Zoning Ordinance which regulates pay phones located on private property is preempted in its entirety under Florida state law.

B. Miami Beach's Right-of-Way Ordinance

FPTA argues that Miami Beach does not have the authority to manage telecommunications companies' facilities in its roads and the public rights-of-way. It claims that the FPSC has exclusive jurisdiction over telecommunications companies which includes the regulation of telecommunications companies' facilities located on either private or public property. The district court ruled that the Right-of-Way Ordinance was not preempted by section 364.01(4), Florida Statutes, because Miami Beach as a municipality, was expressly granted the right to regulate facilities located in its roads and the public rights-of-way including telecommunications companies' facilities. We agree. As discussed above, under section 364.01(2), Florida Statutes, local governments retain jurisdiction to manage their roads and the public rights-of-way. This jurisdiction includes the right to manage the “placement or maintenance of facilities.” Fla. Stat. § 337.401(3)(b).

In this case, Miami Beach’s Right-of-Way Ordinance only concerns the regulation of pay phones located within the city’s public rights-of-way. Pay phones are clearly facilities, therefore, pay phones located in Miami Beach’s public rights-of-ways are subject to the city’s regulation under section 337.401(b), Florida Statutes. There is no preemption by state law.

Although the scope of a municipality’s and county’s jurisdiction to manage its roads and the public rights-of-ways is extremely broad under its policing power, section 337.401, Florida Statutes limits somewhat the authority to regulate telecommunications companies’ facilities. The Florida Legislature set forth three requirements that must be satisfied for a municipality or county to regulate a telecommunications company’s facilities in its roads or the public rights-of-way. In relevant part, section 337.401(3)(b), Florida Statutes, states that:

Each municipality and county retains the authority to regulate and manage municipal and county roads or rights-of-way in exercising its police power. Any rules or regulations adopted by a municipality or county which govern the occupation of its roads or rights-of-way by providers of communications services must be related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in such roads or rights-of-way, must be reasonable and nondiscriminatory, and may include only those matters necessary to manage the roads or rights-of-way of the municipality or county.

Therefore, for a regulation over a telecommunications company's facilities in a municipal and county road or the public rights-of-way to be valid, the regulation must be (1) related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in municipal and county roads or the public rights-of-way; (2) reasonable and non-discriminatory; and (3) necessary to the management of such roads and public rights-of-way. Fla. Stat. § 337.401(b).

Since we have already determined that Miami Beach has jurisdiction to regulate pay phones in its roads and the public rights-of-way, the next task for this court is to determine whether the regulations in question meet the requirements of the statute. We address each relevant section of the Right-of-Way Ordinance in turn.

1. Section 2(1) – Statement of Purpose

FPTA argues that parts of section 2(1) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance are not related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in the public rights-of-way because the regulation of pay phones' operation, testing and use do not fall within the scope of Miami Beach's jurisdiction. The district court concluded that section 2 was not preempted by Florida state law because it provides the foundation for the Right-of-Way

Ordinance. FPTA contends the district court erred in concluding that those portions of section 2(1) were not implicated by Florida law because they were beyond Miami Beach's jurisdiction to regulate. However, we find no merit in FPTA's arguments and agree with the district court's conclusion that section 2 is foundational, states a purpose consistent with the Florida Statutes and, therefore, does not involve any preemption concerns.

2. Section 3(a) – Definitions

Section 3(a) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance states: “(a) ‘Architectural Feature’ shall mean any ornamentation, decorative column, or other significant building detail which represents an important part of the building’s design.” FPTA argues that section 3(a) is not related to the placement or maintenance of pay phones or necessary to manage the public rights-of-way because this section seeks to regulate the design of pay phones. According to FPTA, the design of pay phones does not have any relationship to their placement or maintenance. It claims that the Florida Legislature reserved to FPSC the exclusive jurisdiction to regulate design criteria for pay phones. In response, Miami Beach contends that its definition of architectural features in section 3(a) provides meaning to the Right-of-Way Ordinance and does not itself regulate pay phones. The district court found that section 3(a) was not preempted by Florida state law.

We agree. Reasonable limitations on the design of pay phones deals directly with a concern for aesthetics. We agree with the district court's conclusion that section 3(a) is within the authority of the city and does not raise any preemption concerns.

3. Section 6(c) – Powers and Duties of City Public Works Director

Section 6 of the Right-of-Way Ordinance grants Miami Beach's Public Works Director the power to either grant or deny an application for a pay phone permit; to make regulations pertaining to applications for pay phone permits; and to make regulations regarding the construction, reconstruction, installation, operation, maintenance, dismantling, testing, repair and use of any pay phones. FPTA argues that the terms in section 6(c) are too broad and ambiguous. FPTA contends that this makes the section beyond the scope of Miami Beach's limited authority to promulgate reasonable regulations related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in the public rights-of-way. To the contrary, however, we agree with the district court's findings that all of section 6 is related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in the public rights-of-way, is reasonable and non-discriminatory, and is necessary to manage the public rights-of-way.

Certainly, there must be some order in the regulations and some official must be designated to oversee compliance with those regulations.

4. Section 7(a) – Use of Streets and Sidewalks

Section 7(a) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance set forth requirements that pay phone providers must satisfy prior to installing pay phones and their duties after installation of pay phones with regards to streets and sidewalks as well as other municipal construction projects such as public excavations including installation of sewer lines. FPTA contends that the last sentence of this section grants Miami Beach the authority to deny a pay phone permit even though an applicant has complied with all of the city's requirements for the issuance of such permit. The last sentence of 7(a) states that "[a]pproval or denial of Pay Telephone permits shall be issued by the Director within sixty (60) working days of Application for said permits." FPTA claims that section 7(a) grants Miami Beach's Public Works Director impermissible powers to adopt any format for approval and for denial of any pay phone permit application. In response, Miami Beach contends that the last sentence deals only with an affirmative duty by the Public Works Director to act within a certain time frame in approving or denying a pay phone permit. We agree. It is patently clear to us that all of section 7 is a reasonable regulation related to the placement or maintenance of facilities located in the public rights-of-ways and necessary for the management of the public rights-of-way.

5. Sections 8(d) – Placement of Pay Telephones Near Substantial Criminal Activity

The district court found that section 8(d) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance is reasonably related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in the public rights-of-way, is reasonable and non-discriminatory, and is necessary to manage public rights-of-way under the city's policing power. This includes the city's authority to protect its citizens health, safety and general welfare. Section 8(d) states that:

Pay telephones shall not be placed in Streets or Sidewalks within one hundred (100) feet of street addresses where there is substantial criminal activity. Substantial criminal activity shall mean reports to the police of four (4) or more criminal incidents at an address during any three (3) consecutive months period, both prior and subsequent to the date of the application and/or the installation.

FPTA argues that section 8(d) is defective because there is no connection between the installation of pay phones and criminal activities. FTPA claims that the regulation does not identify or require any connection between a pay phone's installation or operation and the substantial criminal activities as defined in the ordinance. In response, Miami Beach contends that it has always interpreted section 8(d) to require that the substantial criminal activity be directly related to the pay phone at issue. The problem with that argument is that the language of the ordinance does not say that. As written, section 8(d) does not require that there be any connection between the criminal activities and the pay phone at issue. Section 8(d) only requires that there be four or more criminal incidents within any three consecutive months period within one hundred feet of a pay phone. This court can conceive of many circumstances where there might be substantial criminal activities within a hundred feet of a pay phone and there be no connection whatsoever between the crimes and the particular pay phone. For a municipality's regulation over pay phones and criminal activities to be reasonably related, there must be some connection between the particular pay phone and the criminal activities. Therefore, we find that section 8(d) does not meet the requirements of the law and, therefore, is void.

6. Sections 8(f) – No Pay Telephones in Residential Districts

Section 8(f) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance states that: "Pay Telephones shall not be installed in Single or Multi-Family Residential Districts, as described in the City's Zoning Ordinance No. 89-2665." FPTA argues that section 8(f) is unreasonable because it is an outright ban on pay phones located within the roads or public rights-of-way in single or multi-family residential neighborhoods. Although FPTA challenges the district court's findings, it fails to explain how section 8(f) is unreasonable and fails to provide any support for its contention that an outright ban on pay phones in such areas is prohibited. We find no merit in the challenge.

Municipalities have the power to regulate and restrict activities under their policing power for the general welfare of their citizens. See Lamar-Orlando Outdoor Advertising v. City of Ormond Beach, 415 So. 2d 1312, 1315 (Fla. 5th DCA 1982). Indeed, as the district court correctly concluded, Miami Beach, pursuant to its police power, has the authority to regulate the placement of pay phones in the public rights-of-ways located in residential neighborhoods. We conclude that this limited ban in residential neighborhoods is consistent with the authority given municipalities.

7. Section 8(g) – Removal of Pay Telephones Found To Be a Public Threat

Section 8(g) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance permits Miami Beach to investigate and to potentially revoke a pay phone provider's permit for any pay phone located in the public rights-of-way that is found to "constitute a threat to the health and welfare of the community." FPTA contends that there is no connection between the location and use of pay phones and Miami Beach's definition of "threat to the health and welfare of the community." Although we found that section 8(d) was invalid because there was no relationship between the substantial criminal activity and pay phones, such is not the case here. Section 8(g) requires that there be a connection between the location and use of the pay phone at issue and a threat to the health and welfare of the community. Therefore, as the district court correctly found, section 8(g) meets the requirements of the law and is within the authority of the city.

8. Sections 9(b), 9(d) and 9(e) – Installation, Maintenance, and Technical Standards

FPSC argues that sections 9(b), 9(d) and 9(e) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance are not reasonably related to the maintenance of pay phones and to the management of the public rights-of-way because these sections regulate telecommunications companies' services and not telecommunications companies' facilities. Section 9(b) requires that certain types of enclosures be used for pay phones. Section 9(d) requires that pay phone providers seek and obtain waivers from the FPSC to restrict phone calls to only incoming calls. Section 9(e) regulates how paint, metal, plastic, glass, and cardboard inserts on pay phones must be maintained. FPSC fails to offer any explanation as to why these regulations do not meet the three-prongs outlined above and are not permissible regulations by Miami Beach. The district court found that section 9(b) which covers the configuration of pay phones' enclosures affect both the maintenance of pay phones and the maintenance of surrounding roads or public rights-of-way. The district court also found that section 9(d) was proper because it relates to the city's police power and does not interfere with the incoming call block procedures under Florida state law. Lastly, the district court found that section 9(e) except for 9(e)(7) was proper since this section concerns the general upkeep of payphones. We agree with the district court that sections 9(b), 9(d) and 9(e) are related to the placement or maintenance of facilities in the public rights-of-way, are reasonable and non-discriminatory, and are necessary for the management of the public rights-of-way.

9. Section 9(e)(7) – No Advertising on Pay Telephones

Section 9(e)(7) of the Right-of-Way Ordinance provides that “[n]o pay phone(s) shall contain any advertising.” The city claims that the total ban on advertising on pay phones in the public rights-of-way is necessary to preserve the city's aesthetics and for public safety. Miami Beach argues that under its police power it can regulate advertising, including advertising signs, in protecting the city's aesthetics and for the general welfare of its citizens. The district court concluded that section 9(e)(7) is not related to the maintenance of pay phones because the regulation is overly broad. The district court reasoned that since advertising on pay phones in the public rights-of-way can be maintained in a neat manner, Miami Beach's total ban on advertising on pay phones was unreasonable. The district court further concluded that a total ban of advertising on pay phones was only within the exclusive jurisdiction of the FPSC. We disagree.

Again, the issue is whether Miami Beach's regulation of advertising on pay phone relates to the maintenance of pay phones and is necessary to manage the public rights-of-way. Indeed, in this circuit, we have recognized a government's substantial interest in aesthetics and the right to maintain its aesthetics through zoning regulations. One World One Family Now v. City of Miami Beach, 175 F.3d 1282, 1287 (11th Cir. 1999); Messer v. City of Douglasville, Ga., 975 F.2d 1505, 1510 (11th Cir. 1992). Clearly, Miami Beach has a substantial governmental interest in protecting and maintaining the city's aesthetics and this includes control over advertising through valid ordinances.

We conclude that a total ban on advertising on pay phones in the public rights-of-way is a permissible regulation. See e.g., Members of City Council for the City of Los Angeles v. Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. 789, 805-807, 104 S.Ct. 2118, 2128-2130, 80 L.Ed. 2d 772 (1984); Supersign of Boca Raton, Inc. v. City of Fort Lauderdale, 766 F.2d 1528, 1531-32 (11th Cir. 1985) (holding that a city may prohibit advertising vehicles on public streets or waterways to preserve aesthetics and safety). It is perfectly consistent with the city's interest in preserving aesthetics and ensuring public safety. Metromedia, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 453 U.S. 490, 101 S.Ct. 2882, 69 L.Ed.2d 800 (1981) (upholding the city's content-neutral prohibition use of billboards as sufficiently substantial to the city's interest in aesthetics). Advertising of any sort can damage the aesthetics of a neighborhood and can be a distraction to motorists operating vehicles on a city's roads. We uphold this section of the city's ordinance.

IV. Conclusion

In sum, we hold that Miami Beach's Zoning Ordinance is preempted by Florida state law but that its Right-of-Way Ordinance is not. The Right-of-Way Ordinance is a reasonable and proper exercise of its authority to regulate pay phones in the public rights-of-way except for sections 5, 8(d), 10 and 14. Thus, we REVERSE the district court's upholding of section 8(d); we REVERSE the district court's decision striking down subsection 9(e)(7); and we AFFIRM the district court's judgment in all other respects.

AFFIRMED in part; REVERSED in part.

Jackie, we got a letter this morning from Qwest, telling us they're transferring customer base of their bundled DSL Internet access service to Covad--a service not even offered to FL customers. I don't believe we need to open a docket on this, so I'm going to refer it on to CMP.

Am I correct?

Lifeline Assistance & Link-Up Florida

Our nation and our state long ago embraced the concept that a basic set of telecommunications services should be available to all Americans. The goal of universal access to the telecommunications network implicitly recognizes that in our society, a telephone is a necessity, not a luxury.

Nationally, nearly 95 percent of American households subscribe to local telephone service, while in Florida the number is slightly lower, at roughly 93 percent. There is no single mechanism to provide telephone service to those who want a telephone but cannot afford one. However, Florida has two vastly underutilized programs that can help hundreds of thousands of households afford basic telephone service: Link-Up Florida and Lifeline Assistance.

Aimed at increasing telephone subscribership to economically disadvantaged individuals, the Link-Up Florida program provides a reduction of up to 50 percent in the telephone service hook-up charge, to a maximum of $30. The Lifeline Assistance Program provides up to a $13 credit on qualified residential customers' local monthly telephone bills.

Eligibility for Lifeline and Link-Up is straightforward. Individuals participating in the following programs are automatically qualified: Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), Food Stamps, Medicaid, Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and Federal Public Housing Assistance (Section 8). In addition, individuals living on federally recognized tribal land are eligible for benefits through the Bureau of Indian Affairs for Tribal TANF, Head Start Subsidy, or the national school lunch program.

Eligibility is also granted based on income. Currently, an individual whose income is at federal poverty standards is eligible for the Lifeline and Link-up programs. Under a bill passed by the Legislature in 2003 and signed into law by the Governor, the income eligibility criterion increases to 125 percent federal poverty standards. Application for these programs can be made to a qualified individual's incumbent local exchange telephone company.

Based on these expanded eligibility standards, it is estimated that nearly one million Floridians qualify for Lifeline and Link-Up, yet the number of actual participants is about 135,000. Many of the Floridians eligible for these programs but unaware of their existence are among our most vulnerable: seniors with limited income flexibility, young families struggling to make ends meet, or individuals whose medical complications may compromise their mobility. These individuals are often the ones who can least afford to be without a link to the outside world for health and economic reasons.

Awareness of Link-Up and Lifeline is a critical factor in our statewide effort to insure that all Floridians reap the benefits available from our telecommunications network.

Lifeline Assistance & Link-Up Florida Q&A

A telephone is not only a lifeline to help in an emergency, but also serves as a vital link to family, friends and support networks. What follows is information about two programs that can help qualified individuals save money on monthly phone bills or to help some one obtain phone service.

Q. What is the Lifeline Assistance Program?

A. The Lifeline Assistance Program is a federal program that provides up to a $13 credit to qualified residential customers' local monthly telephone bills.

Q. What is Link-Up Florida?

A. Link-Up Florida is another federal program that provides up to a 50 percent reduction in the telephone service hook-up charge, to a maximum of $30.

Q. How is eligibility for Lifeline and Link-Up determined?

A. Individuals are eligible for Lifeline and Link-Up if they participate in one of the following programs:

- Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF)
- Food Stamps
- Medicaid
- Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP)
- Supplemental Security Income (SSI)
- Federal Public Housing Assistance (Section 8)

In addition, individuals living on federally recognized tribal land are eligible for benefits through the Bureau of Indian Affairs for Tribal TANF, Head Start Subsidy, or the national school lunch program.

Q. Are there income standards for Lifeline and Link-Up?

A. Under a bill passed by the Legislature in 2003 and signed by the Governor, the income eligibility criterion will increase to 125 percent federal poverty standards as of July 1, 2003.

Q. How do individuals sign up for Lifeline and Link-Up?

A. By contacting their local phone service provider. Local service providers are listed in local telephone directories.

Q. Can an individual qualify for both Lifeline and Link-Up?

A. Yes.

Q. What if an individual does not have service at this time because of a previous bill that has not been paid? Can this person still receive Lifeline?

A. Yes. The telephone company can require the individual to make payment arrangements over a period of four months for the outstanding local portion of the bill. If the individual has outstanding long distance charges, the individual may be required by the local phone company to participate in toll blocking (blocking a person's access to dial long distance from their phone), but the company cannot deny Lifeline service to qualified customers because of unpaid long distance bills.

Q. Is there more information available on these two programs?

A. Yes. If you or someone you know may be eligible for Lifeline and Link-Up, or if you would like to know if you are eligible to participate in the programs, please call your local phone company. If, after speaking with your phone company, you have further questions, please call the PSC at 1-800-342-3552 and request a copy of our free brochure, Lifeline Assistance and Link-Up Florida. You may also e-mail us at contact@psc.state.fl.us, or visit our Internet home page at www.floridapsc.com for more information.

In Re: Establishment of Citizens Advisory Council for Aloha Utilities, Inc., and Applicability of the Sunshine Provisions of Section 286.011, Florida Statutes

Dear Mr. Rowan:

Pursuant to our telephone conversation on June 2, 2003, I am responding to your question of whether the Florida "Sunshine Provisions" which are set forth in Section 286.011, Florida Statutes, apply to the Citizens Advisory Council for Aloha Utilities, Inc. A review of that section shows that it only applies to "meetings of any board or commission of any state agency or authority of any county, municipal corporation, or political subdivision." It is my own legal opinion that the provisions of this section clearly do not apply to the Citizens Advisory Council for Aloha Utilities, Inc.

Hopefully, this satisfactorily responds to your question and addresses one of your concerns as you begin your service on this Council. If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me at 850-413-6234, or Ms. DeMello at 850-413-6107.

Sincerely,

Hi Hong,

Can you please format the following "subpoena in lieu of testimony"? This is an undocketed matter. It should be addressed to Nancy Sims c/o BST at the local address. The document request is as follows:

"Please provide copies of all RF-141 and RF-1356 forms submitted by service technicians during 2002 and 2003 to date."

Thanks so much!!!

RE: Acct. #17660 21263
1148 Winged Foot Circle, W
Winter Springs, FL 32708

Dear Mr. McLemore:

I have an issue involving the charges for water on my May bill which was $233.93. I am certain your records that establish an average usage for my household indicate how far above average this was.

I have spoken with Dennis Waldrop and he stated he would allow me an excess usage credit of approximately $90.00 to appear on a future bill. His assistance is appreciated but it still does not resolve for me how I could have been charged for using that much water in one month.

There was no change in our patterns of usage and I checked the system and determined no leaks were present.

We paid the bill for May and June for a total of $351.52 and hope to receive future credits to reduce this.

I have spent considerable time on this issue and have the following thoughts:

1. My meter and box were replaced after the bill and I question if it is possible the meter was defective.
2. The box had been damaged in the past by our lawn service allowing dirt to accumulate to a depth of approximately 6" over the meter. I spoke to the utilities director of another city and his opinion was electronic readings would have been difficult if not impossible with this amount of cover-up. We had no sensor under the cover and it certainly was not read manually.

3. Therefore, it leads me to believe it was not read but estimated for many months prior. Once it was read, it was discovered the estimates were too low, resulting in such a large bill. If this is true, I actually used the water but it's a bad practice to have me pay such a large amount at one time.
4. Your water clerk was arrested for stealing from customers. This breach in the integrity of your procedures does give me concern that I too may be a victim.

My apologies for appearing anal in my pursuit of satisfaction in this issue but I feel something is incorrect and I should be provided an explanation. I know I did not use 70,430 gallons in May.

Thank you for you attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

I contacting you regarding an issue that has been painfully brought to my attention by Sprint PCS.

The wireless companies in general are completely out of control. They are riding roughshod over individuals and small business men like myself. I have filed 4 complaints with the FCC regarding their shoddy business practices.

Anyone who uses the internet today can look up any of these companies and see how angry people are.

This is just one of my complaints:

I was given a spending limit of $200 when I signed up. No problem there. My plan was for $85/month. I have repeatedly had my service interrupted for going over the limit. EG. About 2 months ago we sent our payment of $126 10 days in advance of the due date. They did not post the payment on time and shut my service on both of my phones off. We called in and did a phone payment. Now we have made 2 payments on time. They still did not turn the phone on. Why?

Let's look at my current bill. I am showing $106.26 as current. This is due 8/14. No past due no nothing. That is the total current. I spoke with Deborah Weaver at Sprint today. She told me they would possibly be cutting my service off even though I was current because they were estimating what my bill might be down the road. Frankly it was all double talk.

They say they allow you credit for dropped and unintelligible calls. Guess what, in the small print it says they only allow you 10 a month. I get more than 10 in 1 day. Their service, their customer service is so lousy it is hard to believe. If you want to cancel because they are not delivering a decent product, you can, for $150. The way their agreement works if they delivered no service at all you would still have pay them $150. So basically they have an agreement that says we don't have to give you anything, but if you cancel, you owe us $150.

If I tried to do that I would probably go to jail, but if Sprint does it they make money.

Let us say that I make 2000 minutes a month worth of calls, which I usually come close to. I get dropped or have unintelligible voice communication 20% of the time which is not uncommon. That means I have to redial 400 times. If I get credit for 10 calls, that means 390 extra minutes which then puts me 390 minutes over limit and I start paying $.30 per minute or whatever the per minute charge is.

Get it. The more they mess up, the more they make. If you don't like it, you can pay them $150 and they will let you out of the agreement.

God it is great to be a corporate crook in the USA today.

How about looking into this for all of us who are being scammed by Sprint and their other wireless cronies. The FCC is absolutely useless in dealing with these people.

Sincerely,

John Primrose

NEWS RELEASE

September 12, 2003

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

STATEMENT OF FLORIDA PSC COMMISSIONER CHARLES M. DAVIDSON: FREE, COMPETITIVE WIRELESS MARKET OFFERS BEST PROTECTION FOR CONSUMERS

TALLAHASSEE — Earlier this week, the Cellular Telecommunications & Internet Association (CTIA) held a press conference to unveil its "Voluntary Consumer Code," which is designed to encourage greater wireless carrier communication and disclosure to consumers on a voluntary basis. The announcement represents an important first step toward greater self-regulation by industry. Among other aspects, "the Code" requires companies to disclose key rates and terms of service, requires various disclosures in product advertising, and calls for trial usage periods, better billing of taxes and fees, and stronger privacy policies.

The wireless industry is to be commended for this key initiative. The implementation of a voluntary, self-policing code is a positive step by any industry, let alone one that is as highly competitive as is the wireless industry. By providing for greater disclosure of key terms and conditions of service, the CTIA's "Voluntary Consumer Code" will empower consumers to better evaluate the products and services of wireless competitors. Furthermore, the "Voluntary Consumer Code" includes a promise to work with state agencies like the Florida Public Service Commission to better coordinate responses and resolve consumer complaints, even though companies are not required to do so.

This effort is yet another example of how competitive markets can and do respond to the needs and demands of consumers. If businesses in a competitive environment do not react effectively and in a timely manner, consumers will pursue alternatives, and those alternatives unquestionably exist in this market. This basic reality serves to police this industry without the need for the heavy hand of regulation seen in other venues.

In Florida, the wireless industry has emerged free of regulatory shackles, and Florida's consumers today enjoy the benefits of a vigorous competitive market for cellular service. The competitive nature of the industry empowers consumers to make informed choices among multiple providers. The "Voluntary Consumer Code" will provide wireless consumers with an additional tool to distinguish among wireless carriers and choose one that has made a voluntary commitment to their customers to improve service. Ultimately, either wireless providers will respond to the concerns of their customers, or they certainly will suffer a quick demise. The bottom line is that, in a competitive market, the market will respond to consumer needs better than will simply more and more regulation.

Subject: CMS Web Searches

Kay/Hong,

I often have to field calls from company people who are having difficulty finding agreements on our website. In the process of helping these folks, I've found that when the CLEC company code is blank in CMS, web searches by THAT CLEC company name or company code turn up empty, or do not contain all the agreements the CLEC has executed with an ILEC. Given the importance of the company code, we've been checking the 2002 and 2003 agreement dockets in CMS to determine where there seem to be problems. We have found instances where the CLEC company code is something other than a TX/TA code and other instances where the code is blank. Where the code was blank, we've checked to see if the agreement is with a CMRS provider. (CMRS companies don't have company codes, so one would not be present.)

Based on our review, would you please make the following changes to CMS:

020192-TP - TJ051 should be changed to TA013 (IXCs do not sign interconnection agreements)
020193-TP - TJ246 should be changed to TX230 (same as above)
020194-TP - ADD TX587 (The company name was correct)
020353-TP - ADD TL710 and TA065 company codes - this is a "merger conditions agreement"
020405-TP - ADD ~~TX587~~ (The company name was correct) TA065
020429-TP - The correct Company code is TA065 - punctuation error
020448-TP - Add TX587 (the name was correct)
020939-TP - Change TJ545 to TX587 (IXCs do not sign agreements)
021148-TP - Change TJ131 to TX373 (same as above)
030011-TP - Agreement filed by holding company filed on behalf of BOTH TX674 and TX675
030366-TP - Change TJ421 to TX486 (same as above)
030390-TP - ADD TX384 (Correction letter dated 8/13/2003)
030477-TP - ADD TX164 (Correction letter dated 8/28/2003)
030507-TP - Change TJ697 to TX682 (IXCs do not sign agreements)
030560-TP - Change TJ730 to TX709 (same as above)
030842-TP - Change TI022 to TX105 (same as above)

If you have any questions or we need to discuss, please let me know. Thanks for your help.

Review of BellSouth Installation and Repair Practices
Document Request 3

10. Please explain the greater than 50,000 1203 charges made to customers with the BellSouth maintenance plan, included in the list of trouble tickets closed to a 1203 code, provided in DR-2.2.
 - a. How many of the 1203 charges made to customers with the maintenance plan were appropriate?
 1. Please explain why the charges were considered to be appropriately made.
 2. Please provide all support documentation that led to the conclusion that these charges were appropriate.
 3. Explain the following:
 - (a) What TechNet information the technician uses in the field to determine that the customer with a maintenance plan should be billed?
 - (b) What conditions existed with the customer that caused the technician to bill customers with the plan?
 - (c) Whether a RF-141 or RF-1356 form was submitted by the technician.
 - (d) Whether a bill was rendered to the customer, and in what billing format (CRIS or CABS).
 - b. How many of the 1203 charges made to customers with the maintenance plan were improper?
 1. Please explain why the charges were considered to be improperly made.
 2. Please provide all support documentation that led to the conclusion that these charges were improperly made.
 3. Explain the following:
 - (a) What TechNet information the technician uses in the field to determine that the customer with a maintenance plan should be billed?
 - (b) What conditions existed with the customer that caused the technician to bill customers with the plan?
 - (c) Whether a RF-141 or RF-1356 form was submitted by the technician.
 - (d) Whether a bill was rendered to the customer, and in what billing format (CRIS or CABS).

NOTE: Because of the voluminous nature of this request a sample may be used. The sample should be taken on a district basis. Each district sample should match the percent of 1203s issued to customers with the plan in 2002, according to the information provided in DR-

2.2. Please identify retail and wholesale accounts separately. Staff has determined the sample should be completed in the number and percent distribution shown in the chart below:

MTAS Numbers	Districts	1203's in 2002 Coded "0"	Percent of Total for District	Sample Request from each District
N2111	NF NE District	3022	6%	181
N2121	NF NW District	964	2%	19
N2142	NF Central District	4213	8%	337
N2151	NF N Central District	1454	3%	43
N2161	NF Indian River	1712	3%	51
N2250	North Broward	4851	9%	436
N2251	South Broward	10910	21%	2291

Kay,

Please call "Patty" with Expedia @ 636-625-7106. She claims to have talked to someone at the PSC who suggested she send a letter to me asking whether a bond is needed. The PSC person said that it may not be necessary because of the passage of the new telecommunications act. Patty claims she sent a letter on Oct 15.

Please see what you can find and follow-up with her and with me after you address her concerns.

Thanks
