ORDER APPROVING TARIFF

BY THE COMMISSION:

On January 8, 1992, United Telephone Company of Florida (United or the Company) filed proposed revisions to its General Exchange Tariff. The purpose of this filing was to introduce several packages of Custom Calling and Custom Local Area Signaling Services (CLASS) features with banded rates. This filing includes no new features, it simply introduces five packages of existing feature with banded rates.

The packages consist of four residential and one business combination of features such as Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Signal Ring, Call Return and Repeat Dialing at a discount from the individual feature price. This is the first combination packages United has introduced. Most of the series of larger Local Exchange Companies (LEC) in Florida have several similar combinations of features available.

The Company's proposed banded rates are conceptually consistent with the rate structure of its current Custom Calling features. The individual packages' rate bands fall within reasonable limits of the rates charged by other LECs, for similar services.

The Company's costs to provide these packages will be minimal. All of the features are already offered, and their current rates have ample contribution to cover the lost revenues from discounting the prices should stimulation not occur.

Upon consideration, we approve this filing. The packages and rate structure are similar to ones available from other LECs. The packages may also generate contribution to offset local rate increase pressures.
