Subject: Reassignment of confidential documents

Marguerite, we are transitioning some of our duties related to telecom over to RAD.

In keeping with this, we need have some documents from the Confidential Documents Inventory transferred to RAD.

The particular ones I am dealing with relate to the telcos' annual Pole Inspection filing, which is now handled by RAD.

I have identified the following documents (currently assigned to APA) that should be transferred:

- 1) Dkt 070000-OT documents 01941-07, 04830-07, 04833-07.
- 2) Dkt 070634-EI document 01822-09.
- 3) Dkt 100000-EI document 01379-10.
- 4) Dkts 060077-TL/070634-EI/070635-TL document 01822-09.
- 5) Dkt 080000-OT document 01610-08.

6) Dkt 110000-OT document 01401-11.

Please let me know if this will suffice to accomplish this transfer from APA to RAD, or what else needs to be done.

Thanks

Commission to Consider Mandating Inspections for Electric, Phone Company Poles

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) will consider ordering 10-year inspection cycles for all wooden poles that carry investor-owned electric lines at its February 7, 2006 meeting.

The vulnerability of wooden utility poles to damage or failure during the 2004 and 2005 hurricane seasons has been cited as a possible cause of extensive and protracted power outages.

"We have a responsibility to look for short-term and long-term answers that will reduce the impacts of storms on Florida's ratepayers," Commission Chairman Lisa Polak Edgar said. "In light of the unprecedented damage of the last two years, we will be pursuing solutions and considering actions to protect our consumers."

A staff recommendation filed Friday recommends the state's investor-owned electric utilities and local telephone companies inspect 10 percent of their wooden utility poles annually using specified techniques and report the findings to the Commission. Staff recommendations may be accepted, rejected or modified by the Commissioners.

The recommendation notes that federal guidelines for rural electric cooperatives suggest 10-year inspection cycles for wooden poles in most states and eight-year cycles in Florida.

While acknowledging a comprehensive inspection program may involve some added costs for utilities, staff concludes, "An effective pole inspection program can be expected to reduce future storm damage totals."

A copy of the recommendation is available on the Commission's website at <http://www.floridapsc.com>.

Subject: Request For Oral Modification-Agenda Item 12A

Since filing the Recommendation for Docket Nos. 060078-EI and 060077-TL on January 27th, we have determined that the word "major" was inadvertently left in staff's recommendation on Page 13 and should be stricken. Accordingly, staff requests to make the following oral modification at the February 7, 2006 Agenda Conference:

On page 13, under section entitled Conclusion, 2nd to last sentence, strike the word "major."

The entire sentence should now read: Thus, Staff believes the Commission should require each local exchange company to annually report to the Commission the results of its prior calendar year inspections of its wooden poles.

Thank you for your consideration. Should you have any questions, please contact me.

Joe

Commission Orders Wood Pole Inspection Programs for Electric and Telephone Companies

TALLAHASSEE — Comprehensive inspections of wooden utility poles used by investor-owned electric utilities and telephone companies will be conducted every 8 years, the Florida Public Service Commission ordered Tuesday.

By a four-to-one vote, the five-member Commission said initiating the inspection programs is one of a number of steps aimed at making the state's utilities less susceptible to damage from hurricanes and tropical storms.

"This is one of a number of initiatives we'll be taking to reduce our vulnerability to long-term outages," Commission Chairman Lisa Polak Edgar said. "Our ratepayers and our utilities have taken a beating over the last two years and we have to move forward with solutions."

The 2004 and 2005 hurricane seasons set records not only for the number of storms to hit the state, but for the damage caused to critical infrastructure, resulting in lengthy outages of electric and telephone service.

Under the plan adopted by the Commission Tuesday, companies will be responsible for conducting specific tests to wooden poles on a cycle that insures each pole is tested at least once every 8 years.

Phone Companies to Address Pole Inspections

TALLAHASSEE — Preventing extended telecommunications outages in the wake of hurricanes will be the focus of informal discussions between Florida's largest telephone companies and Public Service Commission (PSC) staff on Tuesday.

The Commission voted February 7 to require investor-owned electric companies and local telephone companies to inspect their wooden poles every eight years. The plan is designed to reduce future storm damage and minimize lengthy service outages by identifying deteriorated and overloaded poles. Under the approved plan, test results must be reported to the Commission annually.

Upon request, the Commission granted the local telephone companies additional time to meet and discuss implementing the inspection program. The telephone companies and other interested parties may provide alternatives to the Commission's pole inspection plan to further improve reliability. The meeting will be held at the following time and location:

PSC Approves Embarq Wooden Pole Inspection Plan

TALLAHASSEE — Addressing concerns regarding the risk of wooden pole failure in storm events, the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) approved a comprehensive wooden pole inspection plan Tuesday for Embarq Florida, Inc. (Embarq).

“This plan is part of the larger effort to reduce the state’s vulnerability to hurricanes,” said Chairman Lisa Polak Edgar.

Under the plan approved by the Commission, Embarq will be responsible for inspecting all of its wooden poles at least once every eight years. Embarq must take corrective action on any poles found to be defective or not strong enough to carry their load. Trussing or bracing may be used in areas with greater pole decay due to environmental problems or bug infestation. Embarq maintains approximately 38,800 wood poles within its service area.

In a February 2006 order, the Commission required all of Florida’s incumbent local exchange companies (ILECs) to implement wood pole inspection programs based upon an eight-year cycle. Similar requirements were also made for Florida’s investor-owned electric utilities.

The wooden pole inspection program is one of several measures taken to detect decay and help prevent structural failures of telecommunications and electric systems during storms. Other measures include an audit of joint-use attachment agreements, a transmission structure inspection program, and an analysis of pole failures after severe storms.
