Mr. Rodriguez,

The attached document was received by the FL PSC involving Nettetalk.Com Inc. d/b/a Nettetalk's CLEC Certificate No. 8830 and your signature agreeing to a certificate transfer.

Staff has researched and have not found any pending CLEC certificate transfer applications on file involving Nettetalk.Com Inc. d/b/a Nettetalk.

Can you share information that will explain why you filed the attached form?

Perhaps another company is planning to file a CLEC transfer application soon and just hasn't done it yet.

Re: FPL 10 Year Power Plant Site Plan Submittal
<http://www.psc.state.fl.us/library/filings/12/01983-12/01983-12.pdf>

Dear Mr. Ellis and Ms. Matthews

Thank you for accepting this brief comment regarding the above-referenced ten-year plan on behalf of the Sierra Club and its many Florida members. We are writing to resolve an important ambiguity in Florida Power & Light (FP&L)'s plan.

Specifically, the plan submitted by FPL lists a potential future power plant site identified as site #4 in Hendry County. The description of the Hendry County potential site does not explain whether the site would be, could be or must be used for gas, solar PV, or some mix of both, or describe what that mix would be. Further, this potential site is located in Primary Habitat for the federally and state listed endangered Florida panther, making clarifying the use of the site particularly important. See attached diagram.

Because ten-year plans must provide sufficient information to judge a site's "environmental impact" and its impact on "fuel diversity within the state," the likely use of this site must be clarified in the Plan, as the impacts of the site will be very different depending on how it is used, and if it is used at all. See F.S. 186.801. Accordingly, FP&L should identify its likely use of the site (including the types of generation contemplated for the area, identifying specific megawattage of that generation planned), or, if it cannot, it should explain how that decision will be made. Further, FP&L should specifically discuss the impacts of its plans -- whatever they may be -- upon Florida panthers and their habitat. We respectfully request that the Commission require FP&L to make these clarifications.

Sincerely,

Craig Segall

Subject: FPL 10 Year Site Plan

Dear Florida Public Service Commission:

South Florida Wildlands Association, a Florida non-profit founded in 2010 to protect wildlife habitat in south Florida, was recently informed that Florida Power and Light (FPL) has included the Hendry County energy center (potential site #4 - Hendry County) in its 2012 Ten Year Power Plant Site Plan submitted to the Florida Public Services Commission. on April 2, 2012.

Our organization has a longstanding objection to the location of this plant which has been brought up on numerous occasions. We objected when the proposal was first brought to the Hendry County Planning and Zoning Board in 2011. When the board transmitted their approval to the full commission, we again objected to the commission prior to their vote approving the re-zoning that would make this project possible. We also attended a meeting organized by Laurie McDonald of the Defenders of Wildlife between FPL and representatives of numerous local and national environmental organizations. We again stressed that this particular site for a 3,750 MW gas fired power plant was completely unacceptable to our organization no matter what steps the utility takes to "mitigate" the damage. We have sent action alerts to our membership on this issue (opposing the project) and our views have been covered by the news media (e.g. The Sun-Sentinel and Fox4 television in southwest Florida).

Our objections fall into the following categories:

1. According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), all but 6 of the more than 3000 acres purchased by FPL for this project fall in the primary habitat zone of the critically endangered Florida panther. Panthers have been dying in record numbers as the population expands into ever shrinking habitat. Not only will this destroy and degrade a certain amount of habitat on site, but the impacts on panthers and their prey in the surrounding area from an industrial project of this magnitude are unknown (but extremely likely to be negative). FWS has provided us with GIS maps which indicate numerous instances of both roadkill and "intra-specific" aggression (panther on panther fights to the death) both in and around the FPL property (at least 3 panthers have been killed on a section of CR 833 bordering the property. Telemetry shows a great deal of panther occupancy and state FWC maps of collared panthers indicate that the property and the surrounding area is one of the most important - if not the most important - in the entire state for the species.

The former property owner, prior to selling the property to FPL, wrote a letter to the FWS asking for help putting a conservation easement on the property. In that letter, Mr. Eddie Garcia stressed the property's importance to the panther and numerous other listed and non-listed animals on site (e.g. black bear, crested caracara, eastern indigo snake).

2. The property is currently completely rural and is surrounded by - or in a nexus of - either public lands (e.g. the Big Cypress National Preserve, Dinner Island WMA, OK Slough State Forest, etc.) or lands which have been long sought by Florida Forever for protection. The entire McDaniels Ranch was always expected to have a conservation easement on it - and was in fact included in a Florida Forever project named "Panther Glades". The McDaniels property was considered an "essential" part of that project. The FPL projected energy center will not only degrade the value of nearby public lands, but will introduce development into a still completely rural section of south Florida. Leaving the Seminole Reservation to the south - one encounters virtually no development until one arrives at either Clewiston to the north or Immokalee to the southwest. The area is completely rural. The history of development in south Florida shows that projects like this will not long stand in isolation. Development follows development. In this case - the project alone is enough to cause significant harm to the panther. Further development of the area - including widened roads and increased traffic - would simply be unacceptable.

3. The Hendry County plant would be a virtual twin of the West County Energy Center in Palm Beach County. It is completely unacceptable for a massive utility to be built in such close proximity to a location like the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Lands (just a few miles to the south). Emissions in the form of CO2 but also other pollutants are massive and will clearly degrade what the Big Cypress National Preserve resident botanist - Dr. Jim Burch - has referred to as the most biodiverse piece of land in the entire continental United States. Numerous other scientific papers attest to the diversity of flora and fauna nearby to the FPL Hendry County site. It should also be noted that the waters in the preserve are considered "outstanding Florida waters". That is a resource that clearly needs to be preserved in the condition it is now in.

4. In their Ten Year Plan, FPL has said that their plant will utilize up to 7.5 MGD (million gallons per day) per unit. With three units, that would a total of 22.5 MGD from water that currently makes its way not only to the Seminole Reservation, but to the Big Cypress National Preserve. This is about 7 million gallons a day more than is used by a major municipality like Pembroke Pines in Broward Count and is an unacceptably high amount of water to be drawn from this critical location.

5. There are numerous alternative sites (not far from the chosen site) for this Hendry County plant which would have far fewer ecological consequences. At the meeting with environmentalists, FPL representatives said that the fact that an existing power corridor existed on the north end of the property was a "major consideration" in their choice of this site. However, semi-developed and already industrial sites outside the towns of Clewiston, LaBelle, or Immokalee could be easily connected by power corridor and contain available lands that contain far fewer ecological considerations. The "convenience" of a power corridor should not be an excuse for causing irrevocable damage to the one of the most important natural areas left in south Florida.

Time does not allow us to go into numerous other reasons why the FPL plant should not be built at this location. We will send additional information as well as supporting materials as time allows. Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions or comments regarding this submission.

Thank you for your time and have a very good holiday.

Dear Florida Public Service Commission:

South Florida Wildlands Association, a Florida non-profit founded in 2010 to protect wildlife habitat in south Florida, was recently informed that Florida Power and Light (FPL) has included the Hendry County energy center (potential site #4 - Hendry County) in its 2012 Ten Year Power Plant Site Plan submitted to the Florida Public Services Commission. on April 2, 2012.

Our organization has a longstanding objection to the location of this plant which has been brought up on numerous occasions. We objected when the proposal was first brought to the Hendry County Planning and Zoning Board in 2011. When the board transmitted their approval to the full commission, we again objected to the commission prior to their vote approving the rezoning that would make this project possible. We also attended a meeting organized by Laurie McDonald of the Defenders of Wildlife between FPL and representatives of numerous local and national environmental organizations. We again stressed that this particular site for a 3,750 MW gas fired power plant was completely unacceptable to our organization no matter what steps the utility takes to "mitigate" the damage. We have sent action alerts to our membership on this issue (opposing the project) and our views have been covered by the news media (e.g. The Sun-Sentinel and Fox4 television in southwest Florida).

Our objections fall into the following categories:

1. According to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), all but 6 of the more than 3000 acres purchased by FPL for this project fall in the primary habitat zone of the critically endangered Florida panther. Panthers have been dying in record numbers as the population expands into ever shrinking habitat. Not only will this destroy and degrade a certain amount of habitat on site, but the impacts on panthers and their prey in the surrounding area from an industrial project of this magnitude are unknown (but extremely likely to be negative). FWS has provided us with GIS maps which indicate numerous instances of both roadkill and "intra-specific" aggression (panther on panther fights to the death) both in and around the FPL property (at least 3 panthers have been killed on a section of CR 833 bordering the property). Telemetry shows a great deal of panther occupancy and state FWC maps of collared panthers indicate that the property and the surrounding area is one of the most important - if not the most important - in the entire state for the species.

The former property owner, prior to selling the property to FPL, wrote a letter to the FWS asking for help putting a conservation easement on the property. In that letter, Mr. Eddie Garcia stressed the property's importance to the panther and numerous other listed and non-listed animals on site (e.g. black bear, crested caracara, eastern indigo snake).

2. The property is currently completely rural and is surrounded by - or in a nexus of - either public lands (e.g. the Big Cypress National Preserve, Dinner Island WMA, OK Slough State Forest, etc.) or lands which have been long sought by Florida Forever for protection. The entire McDaniels Ranch was always expected to have a conservation easement on it - and was in fact included in a Florida Forever project named "Panther Glades". The McDaniels property was considered an "essential" part of that project. The FPL projected energy center will not only degrade the value of nearby public lands, but will introduce development into a still completely rural section of south Florida. Leaving the Seminole Reservation to the south - one encounters virtually no development until one arrives at either Clewiston to the north or Immokalee to the southwest. The area is completely rural. The history of development in south Florida shows that projects like this will not long stand in isolation. Development follows development. In this case - the project alone is enough to cause significant harm to the panther. Further development of the area - including widened roads and increased traffic - would simply be unacceptable.

3. The Hendry County plant would be a virtual twin of the West County Energy Center in Palm Beach County. It is completely unacceptable for a massive utility to be built in such close proximity to a location like the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Lands (just a few miles to the south). Emissions in the form of CO2 but also other pollutants are massive and will clearly degrade what the Big Cypress National Preserve resident botanist - Dr. Jim Burch - has referred to as the most biodiverse piece of land in the entire continental United States. Numerous other scientific papers attest to the diversity of flora and fauna nearby to the FPL Hendry County site. It should also be noted that the waters in the preserve are considered "outstanding Florida waters". That is a resource that clearly needs to be preserved in the condition it is now in.

4. In their Ten Year Plan, FPL has said that their plant will utilize up to 7.5 MGD (million gallons per day) per unit. With three units, that would a total of 22.5 MGD from water that currently makes its way not only to the Seminole Reservation, but to the Big Cypress National Preserve. This is about 7 million gallons a day more than is used by a major municipality like Pembroke Pines in Broward Count and is an unacceptably high amount of water to be drawn from this critical location.

5. There are numerous alternative sites (not far from the chosen site) for this Hendry County plant which would have far fewer ecological consequences. At the meeting with environmentalists, FPL representatives said that the fact that an existing power corridor existed on the north end of the property was a "major consideration" in their choice of this site.
However, semi-developed and already industrial sites outside the towns of Clewiston, LaBelle, or Immokalee could be easily connected by power corridor and contain available lands that contain far fewer ecological considerations. The "convenience" of a power corridor should not be an excuse for causing irrevocable damage to the one of the most important natural areas left in south Florida.

Time does not allow us to go into numerous other reasons why the FPL plant should not be built at this location. We will send additional information as well as supporting materials as time allows. Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions or comments regarding this submission.

Thank you for your time and have a very good holiday.

Sincerely,

Matthew Schwartz

Re: FPL 10 Year Power Plant Site Plan Submittal
<http://www.psc.state.fl.us/library/filings/12/01983-12/01983-12.pdf>

Dear Mr. Ellis and Ms. Matthews

Thank you for accepting this brief comment regarding the above-referenced ten-year plan on behalf of the Sierra Club and its many Florida members. We are writing to resolve an important ambiguity in Florida Power & Light (FP&L)'s plan.

Specifically, the plan submitted by FPL lists a potential future power plant site identified as site #4 in Hendry County. The description of the Hendry County potential site does not explain whether the site would be, could be or must be used for gas, solar PV, or some mix of both, or describe what that mix would be. Further, this potential site is located in Primary Habitat for the federally and state listed endangered Florida panther, making clarifying the use of the site particularly important. See attached diagram.

Because ten-year plans must provide sufficient information to judge a site's "environmental impact" and its impact on "fuel diversity within the state," the likely use of this site must be clarified in the Plan, as the impacts of the site will be very different depending on how it is used, and if it is used at all. See F.S. 186.801. Accordingly, FP&L should identify its likely use of the site (including the types of generation contemplated for the area, identifying specific megawattage of that generation planned), or, if it cannot, it should explain how that decision will be made. Further, FP&L should specifically discuss the impacts of its plans -- whatever they may be -- upon Florida panthers and their habitat. We respectfully request that the Commission require FP&L to make these clarifications.

Sincerely,

Craig Segall

Dear Florida Public Service Commission:

South Florida Wildlands Association, a Florida non-profit founded in 2010 to protect wildlife habitat in south Florida, was recently informed that Florida Power and Light (FPL) has included the Hendry County energy center (potential site #4 - Hendry County) in its 2012 Ten Year Power Plant Site Plan submitted to the Florida Public Services Commission. on April 2, 2012.

Our organization has a longstanding objection to the location of this plant which has been brought up on numerous occasions. We objected when the proposal was first brought to the Hendry County Planning and Zoning Board in 2011. When the board transmitted their approval to the full commission, we again objected to the commission prior to their vote approving the re-zoning that would make this project possible. We also attended a meeting organized by Laurie McDonald of the Defenders of Wildlife between FPL and representatives of numerous local and national environmental organizations. We again stressed that this particular site for a 3,750 MW gas fired power plant was completely unacceptable to our organization no matter what steps the utility takes to “mitigate” the damage. We have sent action alerts to our membership on this issue (opposing the project) and our views have been covered by the news media (e.g. The Sun-Sentinel and Fox4 television in southwest Florida).

Our objections fall into the following categories:

1. According the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), all but 6 of the more than 3000 acres purchased by FPL for this project fall in the primary habitat zone of the critically endangered Florida panther. Panthers have been dying in record numbers as the population expands into ever shrinking habitat. Not only will this destroy and degrade a certain amount of habitat on site, but the impacts on panthers and their prey in the surrounding area from an industrial project of this magnitude are unknown (but extremely likely to be negative). FWS has provided us with GIS maps which indicate numerous instances of both roadkill and "intra-specific" aggression (panther on panther fights to the death) both in and around the FPL property (at least 3 panthers have been killed on a section of CR 833 bordering the property. Telemetry shows a great deal of panther occupancy and state FWC maps of collared panthers indicate that the property and the surrounding area is one of the most important - if not the most important - in the entire state for the species.

The former property owner, prior to selling the property to FPL, wrote a letter to the FWS asking for help putting a conservation easement on the property. In that letter, Mr. Eddie Garcia stressed the property's importance to the panther and numerous other listed and non-listed animals on site (e.g. black bear, crested caracara, eastern indigo snake).

2. The property is currently completely rural and is surrounded by - or in a nexus of - either public lands (e.g. the Big Cypress National Preserve, Dinner Island WMA, OK Slough State Forest, etc.) or lands which have been long sought by Florida Forever for protection. The entire McDaniels Ranch was always expected to have a conservation easement on it - and was in fact included in a Florida Forever project named “Panther Glades”. The McDaniels property was considered an “essential” part of that project. The FPL projected energy center will not only degrade the value of nearby public lands, but will introduce development into a still completely rural section of south Florida. Leaving the Seminole Reservation to the south - one encounters virtually no development until one arrives at either Clewiston to the north or Immokalee to the southwest. The area is completely rural. The history of development in south Florida shows that projects like this will not long stand in isolation. Development follows development. In this case - the project alone is enough to cause significant harm to the panther. Further development of the area - including widened roads and increased traffic - would simply be unacceptable.

3. The Hendry County plant would be a virtual twin of the West County Energy Center in Palm Beach County. It is completely unacceptable for a massive utility to be built in such close proximity to a location like the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Lands (just a few miles to the south). Emissions in the form of CO2 but also other pollutants are massive and will clearly degrade what the Big Cypress National Preserve resident botanist - Dr. Jim Burch - has referred to as the most biodiverse piece of land in the entire continental United States. Numerous other scientific papers attest to the diversity of flora and fauna nearby to the FPL Hendry County site. It should also be noted that the waters in the preserve are considered "outstanding Florida waters". That is a resource that clearly needs to be preserved in the condition it is now in.

4. In their Ten Year Plan, FPL has said that their plant will utilize up to 7.5 MGD (million gallons per day) per unit. With three units, that would a total of 22.5 MGD from water that currently makes its way not only to the Seminole Reservation, but to the Big Cypress National Preserve. This is about 7 million gallons a day more than is used by a major municipality like Pembroke Pines in Broward Count and is an unacceptably high amount of water to be drawn from this critical location.

5. There are numerous alternative sites (not far from the chosen site) for this Hendry County plant which would have far fewer ecological consequences. At the meeting with environmentalists, FPL representatives said that the fact that an existing power corridor existed on the north end of the property was a "major consideration" in their choice of this site. However, semi-developed and already industrial sites outside the towns of Clewiston, LaBelle, or Immokalee could be easily connected by power corridor and contain available lands that contain far fewer ecological considerations. The "convenience" of a power corridor should not be an excuse for causing irrevocable damage to the one of the most important natural areas left in south Florida.

Time does not allow us to go into numerous other reasons why the FPL plant should not be built at this location. We will send additional information as well as supporting materials as time allows. Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions or comments regarding this submission.

Thank you for your time and have a very good holiday.

Sincerely,

Matthew Schwartz

Subject: RE: Notice

Good morning David, appreciate you forwarding this to me. I will go ahead and mark Company Code TX942 as being in bankruptcy in MCD per your email, you will need to get back in touch with Mr. Tennis and ask that he send us a copy of the bankruptcy notice as we need to have that for our record, this e-mail notification is not sufficient. That will need to be sent to the Commission Clerk/Ann Cole. I included Mr. Tennis' name on my response to you, so maybe between all of us, he will sent the Notice to us promptly, so that we can handled it properly.

Bob, I'm just giving you an up front notification, once we get the Notice I will handle that accordingly. Should you have any questions, you may contact me at the number listed below. Thanks,
