When considering how much more you want to take away from people who already have to work more than one job or they are on a fixed income please be mindful that they have to put food on the table and to pay for insurance that the government controls (because they don't have a choice in that matter) plus rent or a mortgage, gas in the vehicle to get to work. There are no raises for the ones who work or the ones on a fixed income. How do you expect people to pay more to line your pockets when they don't even have enough to get by now. If you still feel the need to take food away from families and maybe even force them to be homeless just so you can have more in your bank account then you truly have no heart or conscious.

Thank you
Bonita Parker
