RE: FPSC Inquiry 140865C

Dear Ms. Sullivan:

The Governor's office forwarded a copy of your email regarding the fuel cost adjustment to the Florida Public Service Commission (FPSC). The FPSC regulates investor-owned electric, and natural gas utilities throughout the state, and investor-owned water and wastewater utilities in those counties which have opted to transfer jurisdiction to the FPSC. The FPSC has authority in the telephone industry which is limited to the Lifeline Assistance Program, Florida Relay Service, and pay telephone service. We appreciate the opportunity to respond directly to you.

The fuel adjustment charge recovers the actual expenses associated with securing and processing fuel necessary to run the power plants used to generate electricity. Fuel rates mirror rising and falling fuel costs as reflected in the international marketplace. The revenue generated by the fuel adjustment charge does not add to the profit of the utility companies, but goes to pay fuel suppliers and transporters. The cost of fuel is shown as a separate cents per kilowatt-hour charge, and fuel costs are not contained in any other charge on a customer's bill.

Each year, utilities file their projected fuel expenses for the upcoming calendar year. The FPSC, along with the Office of Public Counsel and other consumer representatives closely examine the fuel costs requested by the utilities. Public hearings are held annually to set the fuel factors for the next year. Since rates are set on projected costs, at the end of the year, the costs are "trued-up" or compared to the audited actual expenses incurred by the utility. If the utility recovered more than its actual costs, the amount of over-recovery is used to reduce the next year's costs. If the utility under-recovered (costs were higher than expected) that deficit is likewise rolled into the next year. The fuel cost adjustment is recognized by virtually all state commissions, by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and is also used by most municipal electric utilities and rural electric cooperatives.

Fuel costs for the investor-owned electric companies were set by the FPSC during the November 2021 cost recovery clause hearing. By Florida Statute and established Commission policy, electric utilities may recover certain expenses from customers through cost recovery charges adjusted annually by the FPSC. Cost recovery is allowed on fuel and purchased power, capacity, conservation, and environmental requirements. Utilities may not, however, earn a profit on fuel charges.

Between November 1, and November 3, 2022, the FPSC will conduct the next hearings to determine the 2023 fuel adjustment charges. You may watch the hearings live or afterwards by using the following link:

Governor of Florida Ron DeSantis,

I'm writing because you have a great deal of influence on the Public Service Commission. You appointed 4 of the 5 commissioners on the PSC.

We are tired of the PSC constantly approving increases to our electric bills. It is outrageous that they are about to approve another round of increases to our bills (Docket

We are tired of the PSC constantly approving increases to our electric bills. It is outrageous that they are about to approve another round of increases to our bills (Docket No. 20220001-EI) without even holding public hearings with the opportunity for the public to offer in-person testimony.

Something has got to give with the Public Service Commission, governor. Please speak out. We can't afford another round of electricity bill increases, especially after the record-breaking increases we already had this year.
