Dear Florida Public Service Commissioners,

FPL needs to continue to be economically viable to continue its work to harder the grid and produce sufficient energy for the future. However, how that cost is distributed among customers is very important. Favoring commercial rates over residential rates increases the burden for families and individuals to afford to live in Florida, especially those with lower incomes. Having commercial interests pay more helps to spread the cost throughout the system, reducing the direct burden on residential customers. I am a residential customer of Florida Power & Light (FPL) and a member of AARP.

Sincerely,

David Kaiser
