DEMOGRAPHIC DESCRIPTIONS
PALM BEACH COUNTY

Belle Glade

The Belle Glade exchange is located in western Palm Beach county. The housing is primarily low to middle class, with a moderate business district. The community is fairly self-sufficient for services, medical facilities, shopping and entertainment.

It is our opinion that, of the exchanges in the study, Belle Glade subscribers would have a high community of interest with the Clewiston exchange and, to a lesser degree, a medium community of interest with West Palm Beach. No significant community of interest exists between Belle Glade and the other exchanges.

Boca Raton

The Boca Raton exchange covers some 71 square miles in the southeast portion of Palm Beach County. It is home to Florida Atlantic University and Palm Beach Junior College. There are a number of corporate headquarters located here. There is still quite a lot of available land for residential growth in this exchange, as well as good business growth potential. The exchange is fairly self-sufficient; this area is so well developed that there is little differentiation from exchange to exchange.

Of the exchanges included in the study, Boca Raton residents would have a high community of interest with Boynton Beach residents to the north, and a medium community of interest with West Palm Beach, still farther to the north. Little or no community of interest would exist between Boca Raton residents and the other exchanges' residents.

Boynton Beach

The Boynton Beach exchange is in the southeastern portion of Palm Beach County, just south of the West Palm Beach exchange. This is a highly developed exchange with active residential and business communities. We feel that there is no community of interest between Boynton Beach and the other exchanges in the study.

Delray Beach

The Delray Beach exchange is located in southeastern Palm Beach County, between the Boca Raton and the Boynton Beach exchanges. There is minimal residential activity in this exchange, with business development being the predominant factor. The closest large metropolitan area would be West Palm Beach, but most services would be available from the neighboring exchanges or within Delray Beach.

There would be a high community of interest between Delray Beach and West Palm Beach, but no significant community of interest between Delray Beach and the other exchanges in the study.

Jupiter

The Jupiter exchange is bisected by the boundary between Palm Beach and Martin Counties, so that a portion of the exchange is in each county. It covers some 72 square miles. Much of the land is zoned for large ranchette-type parcels, with a low density rate. The oceanfront corridor is developed with condominiums. There is minimal business activity. Most services, medical facilities, entertainment, etc., would be found in West Palm Beach, to the south.

There is no significant community of interest between Jupiter and the other study exchanges.

Pahokee

The Pahokee exchange is located in the northwest corner of Palm Beach County. This exchange is primarily rural in nature, with sugar cane grown in the northern part and scattered residential and small business activity in the rest of the exchange. Clewiston and Belle Glade would be the closest small towns and West Palm Beach would be the closest large town.

There would be a high community of interest between Pahokee and Clewiston and, to a lesser degree, a medium community of interest between Pahokee and West Palm Beach.
