I am writing to express my concern over the new developments in our community. When we moved here to this rural area, it was to enjoy our environment & freedom to live a country lifestyle. If in the future, we are required to be connected to a regulated water & or sewer system, then our domain is violated by someone's (developer's) profit-making plans. Why should these planned community projects affect our serenity? These developments should be required to build their own systems on property without coming in and changing pre-existing residences.

Cordially,
Patricia Smith
