Executive Summary and Supporting Analysis

This is a combined basic and non-basic tariff filing. The basic filing is pursuant to Florida Statute 364.051(4). In addition to increasing its basic revenues by approximately $4 million dollars, (an increase of 1.5%), the filing will accomplish the following restructure objectives:

1. Eliminate the separate charge for TouchTone service.
2. Eliminate separate rates and rate groups for the former Centel and former United service areas by moving the former Centel exchanges to the existing United rate groups at the revised rates which includes TouchTone in the basic rates.
3. Eliminate the exception exchange/area rate additives for Fort Meade, Greenville, Groveland and North Golden Gate. These customers are currently paying an extended area service or exchange boundary change additive.
4. Exchanges that would have regrouped, but which have not been regrouped since 1995, will be moved to the appropriate rate group based on the increased number of access lines in the local calling areas.
5. Service Connection Charges for the former Centel/United service areas will be restructured and aligned so that the charges are uniform throughout Sprint's service territory. The record change and number change charges are consolidated into the secondary service order charge with a charge of $10.00 for residence and $15.00 for business for any of the associated work activities.

Since this filing will unify the former Centel and United access line rates, it is also necessary to restructure the non-basic access line services rates which are currently priced under the same existing two rate groups. The non-basic portion of the filing is pursuant to Florida Statute 364.051(6). The 15-day notice period is extended so that both the non-basic and basic tariffs will be effective on July 1, 2001. However, customers' bills will reflect the changes effective with the individual customer's applicable July billing date.

Issues arising from this filing are as follows:

Issue 1: Does the Florida Statute 365.051 require a rate element by rate element percent increase or can the rate changes (reductions and increases) vary by rate element as long as the overall aggregate percent increase does not exceed the authorized GDP-PI less 1% increase?

The aggregate or "basket" approach is appropriate and authorized. Nowhere in Chapter 364 is there a prohibition on making the authorized percent increase on an aggregate or a composite basis. Even so, in workshops conducted on this issue in 2000, certain parties contended that the resolution of this issue should be governed by contrasting ss. 364-051(4), Florida Statutes (governing price changes for basic service) with the language in ss. 364.051(5) (governing price increases for non-basic service). Advocates of the proposition that basic service increases are only allowed on an individual element basis cite wording differences in the two subsections in support. Primarily cited is the fact that the term "category" is used in ss. (5), while the word is absent in ss. (4). Thus, the argument goes, there is no basket approach authorized in implementing basic service increases. The Commission has interpreted ss. (5) by establishing baskets of non-basic services. See, Order No. PSC-96-0012-FOF-TL, issued January 4, 1996 (hereinafter, Non-Basic Order).

Sprint submits that there is a very logical explanation for the absence of the word "category" in ss. (4) and that the Commission's prior decisions and a correct reading of Chapter 364 support use of a basket approach in this situation as well.

Subsection 364.051(2) does not use the term "category" for the simple reason that there is no need. Basic service is defined in ss. 364.02(2) as a discrete service category functionally comparable to the categories the Commission designated in the Non-Basic Order. That order separated non-basic services into ten baskets based on similarities and/or use of the services. Non-basic service is effectively defined in ss. 364.01(8) as everything but basic service (ignoring network access and local interconnection arrangements, which are not relevant for purposes of this analysis). Even the headings of the major sections of s. 364.051 lend support for this view. The section is divided into three parts. Subsection (1) is entitled SCHEDULE, subsection (2) is entitled BASIC LOCAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE and ss. (5) is entitled NONBASIC SERVICES. Clearly the legislature recognized that there is only one category of basic service (hence, the singular "service" in the heading) while there are multiple categories of non-basic services (thus, the plural "services" in the ss. (5) heading). There is no legislative history indicating an intent to treat basic service any differently with respect to the basis for implementing price increases. Chapter 364, on its face and taken as a whole, supports the notion that basic service is a separate category and that the percentage price increase allowable can be applied on a basket basis.

The Commission has previously interpreted similarly worded statutory language in ss. 364.163(6), Florida Statutes (1997) to allow basket-type treatment for rate changes. In 1997, Sprint made the required 5% annual reduction in access charges. In an effort to eliminate disparate rate levels for access charges within the combined Sprint–Florida company, Sprint reduced the higher Centel area access charges by greater than the mandatory 5%, while reducing the United area access charges by 1.4%, or less than the required 5%. The company-wide change to the basket was 5%. The commission initially questioned the basket approach, but approved the filing upon recognition that "Sprint's effort to bring the rates for Centel and United into parity is reasonable." In re: Flow-through of 1997 LEC switched access reductions by IXCs, pursuant to Section 364.163(6), F.S. Docket No. 970274-TP; Order No. PSC-97-1028-FOF-TP at p.4; Fla. PUC LEXIS 1151; 97 FPSC 8:579; August 27, 1997. (Hereinafter, "Sprint Access Order"). See also, Order No. PSC-96-1265-FOF-TP, (percentage may vary by element but must yield overall reduction required by statute).

The language in s. 364.163(6) is very similar to the language in 364.051(4) with the relevant difference being the use of the word "rates" instead of the word "prices." These terms have no linguistic or technical distinction and are used interchangeably throughout Chapter 364. Further bolstering Sprint's position is that the access charge rate-cap language found in s. 364.163(2) uses the term "specific network access service rate. The use of the word "specific" is significant, in that it places the statutory cap on individual rate elements within the category of network access service. No such limitation is contained in the basic service capping language of ss. 364.051(4). The absence of the limiting language means that the Commission should not depart from existing precedent that interprets price increases to be allowable on a basket basis.

In the 1997 Sprint Access Order the Commission considered other public interest factors (e.g. "parity") in making its statutory interpretation. Sprint submits that the Commission has an even stronger reason to do the same here. Section 364.10(1), Florida Statutes prohibits a company from making, giving or subjecting any person or locality to undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage. Without the regrouping and alignment of the former Centel and United rate groups, customers under the same or substantially same circumstances and conditions (e.g. calling scope) are paying different rates. While the current Centel/United rate group disparity is not illegal since the tariffs creating it were lawfully approved, allowing the regrouping and rate group alignment, i.e., charging all customers based on a uniform company-wide rate schedule is consistent with the non-discriminatory intent of 364.10(1). Fixing the disparity issue, which has persisted for 5 years, is consistent with the public interest. Eliminating the locality-based disparity will be consistent with prior Commission decisions interpreting the basket vs. individual element issue. Rate group parity will be achieved and the legislative intent fostered by allowing this basic rate filing to go into effect.

Issue 2: Should resold basic services be included in a basic service price cap filing? Since the CLEC is the customer of record and has multiple basic service access lines, do they still qualify as basic service under the statutory definition? The definition of basic services, in Florida Statute 364.02(2) does not separately address the resale issue. However, the only logical conclusion for purposes of price cap regulation is that resold basic services are still classified as basic services for purposes of price regulation. If it were determined that resold basic services should not be classified basic services they would be subject to a substantially different price cap index, i.e., the non-basic service category cap of 6%. If this were to occur, customers subscribing to resold basic services could over time be charged higher rates because of different price cap indices. This would be contrary to the intent of resale under The Telecommunications Act of 1996.

Issue 3: Should customers that subscribe to Sprint Solutions, a bundled basic access line and optional features package, be included in the basic service category for purposes of price cap regulation?

Sprint has included the access line demand and associated rates and revenues portion of the Sprint Solutions package in the basic service category but excluded all the non-basic features and associated revenues. These are residential and single line business customers that, by definition would be classified as basic service customers if they did not subscribe to the bundled package with optional services.

These customers subscribe to optional features on a packaged basis with the access line and should not lose the statutory protections provided by retaining status as basic service customers. Maintaining the basic service status for these customers confers no benefit to the Company other than the administrative value. Conversely, if these customers were reclassified as non-basic service customers a greater percent rate increase would be allowed for the access line portion of their service bundle.

Issue 4: Should nonrecurring charges, other than the access line and primary service ordering charge applicable for initiating basic service, be included in the basic service category?

Order No. PSC-96-0012-FOF-TL approved an industry stipulation specifying the classification of services as basic or non-basic. The order stated, "The non-recurring charges associated with the initiation of basic local service should not be included in a non-basic service category." The secondary service ordering charge is applicable for basic residential service additional lines and should also be classified as basic. Similarly, the restore service charge is a form of initiating, i.e., re-initiating service and should be included in the basic category.

The record change and number change charges, which are applicable to basic and non-basic service customers are being eliminated as separate charges. Customers (basic and non-basic) requesting these services will be charged the secondary service ordering charge. All of these non-recurring charges, which are applicable to basic and non-basic customers, should be classified as basic service for purposes of the price cap indexing.

Summary/Customer Impact:

The net result of this filing is that about two-thirds of the residential customers will pay reduced recurring rates for their basic services; the average reduction will be about $ .54.

About one-third of residential customers, because of regrouping and/or the fact that they are not currently paying for TouchTone service, will see an increase; the average increase will be about $ .43.

About 96% business customers will see an increase; the average increase will be about $1.26.

a. This feature allows customers to automatically reject incoming calls when the call originates from a telephone number which has invoked a blocking feature that prevents the delivery of their number to the called party. Incoming calls are checked for acceptance or rejection by ACR regardless of the current state of the ACR customer's line (i.e., off-hook or idle) and the feature can be activated or deactivated at the customer's discretion through the use of preassigned feature access codes.
