Dear Ms. Bayo. --

Steven, my husband, wanted a license for payphones. My husband wanted to purchase payphones and start a business but he has died. I do not have any payphones and have not collected any money from this venture. I have since understood that I did not purchase a license for payphones but a certificate to sell local and long distance services. I did not know this at the time and have been mistaken. I really did not know what I was getting into. I was not aware of any pass due charges or 2001 Assessment Fee. I am not in the telecommunications business and never was. I have not collected any money at all from payphones or any other source.

Since my husbands death I am sorting out many details and this is one of them. I do not have any money. I would like to voluntary cancel my certificate and state that I was never in the telecommunications business. My husband wanted this and he was at the beginning stages but it was never accomplished.

I do not have any money at all for past due regulatory assessment fees, penalties or interest charges. Is there anything that can be done to resolve this? I voluntary cancel my certificate. Since my husbands death with no life insurance I am in debt now and this would put me over the edge. I can't sleep at night now worrying about how I am going to pay for my house. If there is anything that can be done to cancel my certificate and waiver any fees?

You can call me at work or home. Work phone is 904-542-3170 ext 124 or home 904-778-2185.
Thank you

Sincerely yours,

Patricia F. Jones
