Good morning, Jackie. I've read the company's letter and looked at the current name and the new name and it appears to me that this is really just a name change. They are just getting rid of the Public Payphone U.S.A., Inc. portion and keeping the d/b/a portion. They are up to date on RAFs except 2003. I would think that they would want to go with a name change to avoid having to pay RAFs on the old and the new since they would be given a new company code if it were a transfer. What do you think? I believe Ruth can go ahead and open a docket to change the name, but will let it be your call.
