Marguerite, per our conversation, please go ahead and declassify these two FPL confidential documents, based on their withdrawal of request for extension of confidentiality. Per usual procedure, send staff's material back to them (Lynn, fyi) and place the company's material in current fuel adjustment docket.

Thanks.

Hello.

CCA rec'd. a letter from FPL yesterday withdrawing its 9/18/02 1st request for extension of confidential classification for confidential DNs 08553-99 and 09075-99. The declassification date would have been 9/20/02 per Order PSC-01-0707-CFO-EI. Is it OK to declassify these 2 DNs & place them in the public docket file ??? thanks.

Janice, I got your memo with the list of documents currently marked as motions in CMS. I did unmark DN 09529-02, but I believe the others need to remain marked as motions. They are/were motions, but there was no need to rule--for the reasons stated in the notes area for each. You can enter a "date satisfied" using the date of staff's memo saying to return the document or whatever other action took place to satisfy the motion.

I'm copying Mary Anne and Cochran on this e-mail as well. Please let me know if any questions.

Dear J. Langston:

Please deny the excessive rate request being sought by FPL. At this time, they have enough of our hard earned money to run their company.

Stockholders are suing FPL for giving $62 million in perks to their CEOs. Former President Broadband was given back the $20 million in stock options he so "generously" gave up. If FPL can give away this much money in customers' monthly bills, they certainly do NOT need a rate increase now or anytime in the future!

What they need to do is to quit expensive CEO perks, quit — expensive advertising, quit neglecting routine maintenance! I've — been trying for months to get lights fixed in our Lake Charles — community here in St. Lucie West, Port St. Lucie, off of I95 at exit
— 121. TO NO AVAIL!!! I want FPL to become fiscally and ethically
— more responsible. Cut out frills and CEO perks. Serve customers
— first. Thank you.

Please deny FPL's latest rate request!!! If they can pay their CEO's a $62 million bonus this past year as well as reinstate former Pres. Broadband's $20 million stock option which he so generously returned initially, they (FPL) have enough to get by on without soaking us customers anymore!! Please make them show some fiscal restraint. Also, I have tried w/o success to get 3 light bulbs replaced and 3 more checked out on light poles in Lake Charles which they are supposed to take care of//to NO avail//Please say NO NO NO WAY to FPL!! FUEL ADJUSTMENTS SET FOR THREE ELECTRIC UTILITIES

TALLAHASSEE — Mid-course fuel adjustment charges approved by the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) Tuesday and their impact on residential customers of Florida Power & Light, Progress Energy Florida, and Tampa Electric Company are listed below.

The adjustments are based on fluctuations in the price paid by utilities for fuels that power electric generation and will be effective in the April billing cycle. The Commission approved the fuel adjustment charges after reviewing the reasonableness of the costs presented by the utilities. The Commission will determine whether the costs recovered through the fuel adjustment charges were prudently incurred during its annual fuel hearings in November.

Mid-course corrections may be approved by the Commission to reduce the long-term impact on consumers of rising fuel costs. The rates listed are based on 1,000 kilowatt hours (kwh) of use.

- Residential customers of Florida Power & Light will pay $81.60 for 1,000 kwh of use, compared with the current rate of $76.85, an increase of $4.75.
- Residential customers of Progress Energy Florida will pay $83.71 for 1,000 kwh of use, compared with the current rate of $80.35, an increase of $3.36.
- Residential customers of Tampa Electric Company will pay $94.14 for 1,000 kwh of use, compared with the current rate of $89.68, an increase of $4.46.

Comments:

Who can i pass my fuel costs on to as you are allowing Florida Power & Light to do? A joke! What ever happened to the cost of doing business? And don't tell me how they lowered rates when times were a little better. Its BULL and you all let them get away with it.

Rate Hike March 05 2003

It never ceases to amaze me why you people always approve a rate hike when the power company asks for one. As long as I have been on this earth, I have never seen a Public Utilities Commission say 'NO' to a rate hike.

These Power Companies have got more money than GOD. What's the matter, are they afraid to lose a little profit? I think they could stand to lose a little money just like the rest of us. Why should only we suffer? Let them suffer too.

Marguerite, please delete this PDF so it will not show up on our network and the Website.

Per Cochran, Progress Energy has just stated there is confidential information in one of the disclosure statements. While the company didn't follow protocol in asking for conf. treatment, we do need to pull it from the Website and network while the matter is sorted out. The original will however remain in the docket file.

Thanks.

Subject: audit material from 030001

Bob, Marguerite talked with me about the documents (04012-03 and 04157-03--the first an audit report on Progress Energy and the second a corrected version of Progress Energy and TECO's audit reports) that contain material identified after the report was filed as confidential. As you may know, we deleted the PDF of 04012-03 from the network (and Internet) and did NOT scan 04157-03; however, we cannot pull the originals of these documents from the public record. They will need to remain in the docket file.

Please let me know if questions.

I wish to voice my complaint against FPL getting another rate increase. Their increases appear to be larger than cost of living raises. I feel that hey should look within the corporation to find ways to cut cost-such as advertising since they have no competition in my area of Melbourne. Why can't we have a competitor here in tthis area. Thank you

PROBLEM INFORMATION

Problem Type: Other Complaints
Complaint Detail: My complaint is the continued request for rate increases by FP&L. They were granted a rate increase earlier in 2003 and NOW WANT ANOTHER. My family has a small landscape company and when we tried to raise rates MINIMALLY to cover expenses, i.e. workers comp., fuel, wages, etc. WE LOST CONTRACTS BECAUSE OUR CUSTOMERS WOULDN'T PAY A HIGHER FEE!!!!But our utility companies just ask for more and more money from their customers without cutting their costs. It certainly makes me wonder how much the salaries of their CEO and other officers are. I bet they don't get pay cuts but us small business OWNERS SURE DO. When the government publishes reports that say the cost of living is minimal THEY CERTAINLY AREN'T INCLUDING MY UTILITY AND INSURANCE EXPENSES. The PSC needs to refuse the rate hike requested by FP&L and any other utility in the State of Florida.

Dear Sirs:

Before granting a rate increase of 6% to FPL I think you should look into: 1. recovering the 62 million dollars paid to executives for a change in ownership that never occurred. 2. investigate the 380 million dollars lost in the Indonesia fiasco. 3. the 100 million dollars lost in investment in Columbia. 4. the lost of 100-200 million dollars lost in FPL venture in energy trading. 5. The FPL Air Force which has a annual 20-30 million dollar expenditure used to satisfy the egos of the executives of a company with only 10,000 employees. This is a regulated monopoly. There are companies with 100,000 to 200,000 employees that fly coach. The Gulf stream lear jets and the helicopter force should be done away with before you grant the FPL the rate increase.

Complaint Detail: We (the consumers) have been notified that ANOTHER rate increase is soon to become effective. This action follows a previous rate increase that became effective in April. In my monthly FPL statement I was informed that the company was seeking a rate increase of 6%, $214million, to underwrite what they claim was

"unrelenting pressure from natural gas prices coupled with record weather extremes ... for the first several months of this year."

It seems that this statement does not reflect the reality of FPL'S first quarter statement to investors in which the company cites that earnings for Florida Power and Light in this first quarter were $135million as opposed to $118million in the same quarter of last year; here is a statement from their web pages and a link to those pages:

"First quarter net income for Florida Power & Light, FPL Group's principal subsidiary, was $135 million or 76 cents per share, up from $118 million or 69 cents per share from the prior year quarter. FPL added 93,000 customer accounts, an increase of 2.3 percent over 2002. Retail usage per customer was up 6.9 percent, driven in part by cold weather in January and warm weather in March.

"FPL's financial and operational performance in the quarter was excellent, continuing to support why I believe the company is one of the top utilities in the industry," said Hay. "In January we experienced unusually cold weather and recorded an all-time peak of 20,190 megawatts, while in March we experienced one of the warmest months on record and a severe tornado in South Florida. I am proud that our employees and facilities were up to the challenge brought on by these extreme conditions."

Here is the link to that page:

<http://www.investor.fplgroup.com/news/20030424-107329.cfm>

Thus it does seem to me that FPL is simply attempting to pass on to the consumer whatever excess fuel payment if any has been necessitated this year while still enjoying quite a healthy profit, in order to garner ever more profit without concern for the community in which it thrives.

Frankly, if FPL insists on maintaining its dependence on natural gas and other fossil fuels, then as a mature corporation of $8-billion annual income, it deserves to be fined for its lack of foresight.

Although I do see that FPL GROUP is invested in "wind energy" in the northeast, they have yet to bring that knowledge to the State of Florida which could easily utilize windmill technology --- as it could use solar energy technology or lightning strike technology in the lightning strike capital of the world. Or, as we have a thousand plus miles of coastline, wave energy technology which is now in experimental phase in parts of Europe I believe.

My point is simply that FPL does not deserve a rate increase; perhaps a reduction might be in order as a penalty for being very shortsighted.
Thank you for attending to this matter.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT APPROVED FOR FLORIDA POWER & LIGHT

TALLAHASSEE — A mid-course fuel adjustment charge for Florida Power & Light (FP&L) was approved by the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) Tuesday.

The adjustment, which will add slightly more than $5 a month to the average residential utility bill, is based on fluctuations in the price paid by the utility for fuels that power electric generation. FP&L filed for the requested adjustment to recover $214 million of unanticipated increases in fuel costs between February and May of 2003.

While the utility will be permitted to recover the increased fuel costs starting with its August billing cycle, the Commission will determine whether the adjustment charges were prudently incurred during its annual fuel hearings in November.

Mid-course corrections may be approved by the Commission to reduce the long-term impact on consumers of rising fuel costs. Based on the adjustment approved Tuesday, the rate for 1,000 kilowatt hours(kwh) of use for residential customers will increase from the current level of $81.60 to $86.73, an increase of $5.13.

Florida Public Service Commission,

I am concerned about the increase in Florida Power & Light. In April 2003, Florida Power & Light increaeed its rates 6.2 percent for residential customers because of increased fuel cost. Fuel cost has come down but my bill has not. I have no choice but to use FPL because there is no other service. I think FPL needs to look deeper into there management, perhaps the salaries of top management. Get them to live on incomes like most FPL customers do. We need no more rate increases.

Thank You,

Larry Simmons

One of the organizers of this morning's press conference regarding the TECO coal transport issue called last night to ask how consumers could register their thoughts on the pending contract. I recommended doing so in writing, addressed to the Clerk's office, referencing docket no. 030001-EI (fuel adjustment clause). This suggestion was made to avoid 1) having callers use the toll-free number, which is for specific complaints; 2) contacting Commissioners' offices directly; 3) contacting this office, which has no mechanism for handling complaints.

This does not mean the advice will be accepted, and some calls may result.

Dear commissioners,

I am submitting this letter of protest to a rate increase for the Florida Power Light co. for the following reasons; the primary reason for the requested rate increase is the increasing cost of doing business such as the increased cost of equipment, materials, salaries/benefits and various subcontracts. These cost for the most part are projected expenditures after the first year. The increased rates to support the business expense falls short from reaching the employees who are doing the work. In particular the subcontractors have resorted to unfair labor practices relative to wages and other personnel matters.

I strongly urge you to review this matter and hold further consideration of rate increases for the Florida Power Light co. Thank you for your consideration regarding this matter and further information can be provided if necessary.

Sincerely, DeWayne Lewis

Re: Shutdown of Tampa Electric Company's Gannon Units 1-4

Dear Chairman Jaber:

On behalf of the Tampa Bay Group of the Sierra Club's Conservation Committee, I would like to express our support that Tampa Electric be allowed to cease operation of its coal-fired units at its Gannon Station at soon as proposed.

We are aware that Tampa Electric is required by federal and state court orders to stop the burning of coal at Gannon Station by the end of 2004. We are also aware that Tampa Electric has already shut down Gannon Units 1 and 2 and plans to shut down Gannon Units 3 and 4 in the fall of 2003. From an environmental standpoint, shutting down these units sooner than the end of 2004 will result in significant reductions in air pollutants such as SO₂, NO_x, particulate matter and mercury. Not only will this benefit the environment but it will also safeguard the health of Tampa Bay citizens.

On behalf of our organization, I urge the Commission to allow Tampa Electric to cease coal-fired generation at its Gannon Station at the earliest possible date.

We appreciate your consideration of our concerns.

Very truly yours,

RE: TECO Gannon Station's Conversion from Coal to Gas

Dear Chairman Jaber:

It has come to our attention that TECO's plans to cease burning coal at the Gannon Station this fall, some one year ahead of schedule, are somehow being challenged in front of your Board. As the Executive Director of the local environmental agency responsible for protecting the air and the waters of Hillsborough County, I strongly urge you to consider the benefits of an early conversion to natural gas at this facility before you render any final determinations.

Late in 1999 and early in the year 2000, TECO signed enforceable agreements with both the State of Florida and the U.S. EPA respectively, to reduce air pollution from Gannon Station. The agreements require TECO to essentially repower with natural gas using a combination of new construction and some of the existing infrastructure. The EPC actively participated in the investigations which lead to these historic agreements, and we feel we have a vested interest in their successful conclusion.

This conversion is critical to the reduction of ground level ozone in Hillsborough County and the surrounding Bay Area because it will significantly reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from the TECO plant. Ozone irritates the respiratory system, causing coughing, choking, and shortness of breath. These effects are most pronounced in the more vulnerable members of our community, children and the elderly. In addition, prolonged exposure to ozone results in a gradual deterioration of lung tissue.

From 1981 until 1996, Hillsborough County was unable to meet the one-hour NAAQS for ozone, and was designated as an ozone "nonattainment" area by the EPA. With the designation came requirements for stricter air pollution controls. After years of effort by federal, state, and local regulators, the air quality was finally improved to the point where we were able to meet the standards and redesignated as a maintenance area. However, this redesignation could change as we now must meet a new more stringent eight-hour ozone standard. Just last week, we issued an air advisory as we had two unhealthy days because of 8 hour ozone exceedances. This reminds us, we could once again face a nonattainment designation by the EPA, and the expensive clean up plan that would follow. Thus we are most anxious to see this TECO coal-fired plant cleaned up before another ozone season is upon us.

Thank you for your consideration. Please feel free to call on me if we can be of any assistance to the Public Service Commission on this issue.

Sincerely,

Richard D. Garrity, Ph.D.

Commissioner Deason:

As you know, I have been following closely the developments around Tampa Electric Company's solicitation for bids for barge transportation services. As you also know, it is my opinion and the opinion of many others knowledgeable of the energy industry that TECO is abusing its ratepayers by entering into inflated contracts with a sister company, TECO Transport. Further, I have advocated and will continue to advocate that the state best serves the interest of ratepayers by ensuring honesty, prudence and common sense in the bid solicitation and fuel recovery processes.

In a September 12, 2003, filing (Docket No. 030001-EI) with the Commission, and in subsequent testimony by TECO advocates, TECO defended the bid solicitation process for which is has come under fire. In this filing and in these testimonies, TECO makes a number of claims about its solicitation in an attempt to validate a process that can have only one result: the awarding of TECO's river barging, transloading and ocean barging contracts to TECO Transport.

By writing to you today, I hope to show that several of what TECO considers pillars of its defense of this solicitation are unstable and weak at best. I will assert that those pillars cannot reasonably sustain a controversial bid that could impact TECO ratepayers to the tune of millions of excess dollars. Rather, those pillars crumble under the weight of closer scrutiny, especially TECO's seminal claim that rail rates are a reasonable proxy for determining reasonable barge shipping rates.

Initially, though, allow me to make several crucial points about this bid process in general. First, it is out of the ordinary for contractors of barge and terminal services to desire a contract as lengthy as five years. Rather, contractors generally choose very short contract periods, such as one or two years, or even shorter if terminals and barge companies will allow. This gives contractors the opportunity to take advantage of changing market conditions. Also, contractors rarely wish to contract with only one barging company or terminal service. Why? Because contracting with multiple companies allows a contractor to create competition, take advantage of flexibility and foster market conditions favorable to their bottom line.

It should raise serious concern among regulatory bodies, then, when large utilities such as TECO buck industry norms and seek long-term contracts with a sole source provider. It should also raise concern that TECO seems unwilling to take advantage of opportunities to buy goods and services on the spot market, even though goods and services on the spot market often are available at considerable value relative to contracted products.

Second, we must not forget that TECO can, if it wishes to, ship imported coal directly to Tampa. One of its smaller competitors, Lakeland Electric, recently signed a contract with CSX to deliver coal for a rate of $16.50/ton, delivering it from coalfield to plant. Compare that rate to TECO's projected bid price, which is almost $24/ton. The Commission must not allow TECO to ignore its competitors' practices. One fact is clear: the Port of Tampa can just as easily accept ocean-going, coal-laden vessels as it can ocean-going barges sailing from Davant, Louisiana. The dimensions of so-called handy-sized vessels are no greater than TECO Transport's barges that originate from Davant. These facts are indisputable, and any independent survey of the Port of Tampa's channel depths will confirm this fact. TECO, though, chooses to ignore these facts, deciding instead to ship imported coal past Tampa to Davant, and then back to Tampa on TECO Transport's barges. TECO Transport is able to charge $13.50 for the passage of barges from Davant to Tampa, adding to the bottom line of its parent company's balance sheet.

Third, there is evidence that TECO, if it wished to branch outside its own subsidiaries, could do business with other ports along the Mississippi River at lower prices. In fact, one terminal in the vicinity of TECO Transport's Davant terminal is offering transloading rates as low as $1.25/ton. I will disclose the name of that terminal facility if asked to do so by the Commission. Similarly, TECO does not have to send coal to Davant for blending, as its power plants are capable of blending coal. TECO's Gannon plant, for example, is now a gas facility and has ample facilities for coal blending. The Big Bend facility also has blending capabilities.

Those, of course are my broad observations on the process, and they raise, in my opinion, important questions about TECO's behavior with respect to this solicitation. Why would a company as large as TECO seek to enter into long-term contracts with a sole source for river barge, transloading and ocean barge services? Why would a contractor choose a costly, circuitous route for imported coal when its competitors in the Tampa area ship directly to the Port of Tampa? And, finally, why would a company use rail rates to determine whether bids for waterborne rates are fair? I assert that the answers to all of those questions revolve around one important theme: TECO's unwavering effort to contract with TECO Transport for river barge, terminal and ocean barge services.

There are a number of logistical, practical and technical flaws in TECO's solicitation (WB-2004). Logistical requirements of the bid solicitation grant a substantial competitive advantage to TECO Transport. The attached critical analysis of WB-2004 unpacks these logistical requirements and shows multiple ways in which TECO lays its bid solicitation upon the doorstep of TECO Transport. While TECO's September 12 filing and testimonies claim that the prices it pays to TECO Transport are "reasonable and prudent" and that it would be appropriate for TECO to recover costs associated with these prices, I assert that the company stretches the definition of reason and goes beyond the boundaries of prudence.

For example, the solicitation's requirement that the bidder must use "sources convenient to Mississippi and Ohio River systems" and that "terminal facilities should be accessible to Mississippi River barge traffic" eliminates a wide range of possible ports in the Gulf of Mexico that are not located in Louisiana. Although Joann Wehle, TECO's Director of Wholesale Marketing and Fuels, testified before you that TECO's coal portfolio

“necessitates that the transloading and storage terminal facilities be accessible to Mississippi River barge traffic,” a wholesale funneling of shipments to Davant, Louisiana, does not always serve the best interest of ratepayers.

According to requirements of the solicitation, a bidder would not be able, for example, to use a port along the west coast of Florida to receive foreign coal shipments. The bidder, instead, would have to direct foreign coal shipments to the Gulf Coast of Louisiana before then directing coal to its final destination. However, Tampa Electric’s competitors, such as Lakeland Electric, regularly use the Port of Tampa to receive inbound coal from origins in South America and elsewhere. This element of the solicitation, then, would seem to create unnecessary shipping expenses that drive up the cost of electricity for Tampa Electric customers.

As another example, the solicitation limits imports of foreign coal to only 1 million tons, a mere fraction of the coal required under the solicitation. This limit has several important consequences. First, limiting coal imports precludes potential bidders from procuring less expensive coal that is chemically similar to domestic products. The cheapest petcoke currently on the market, for example, comes from Venezuela. The result for end consumers of Tampa Electric energy would be unnecessarily high pass-through costs for fuel materials. Second, limiting foreign coal continues to give a competitive advantage to ports not on the west coast of Florida. If nearly all of the coal shipped pursuant to the solicitation comes from domestic sources, than west Florida ports will lose out on the possibility of receiving coal from foreign sources. The beneficiaries of such an arrangement are bidders with ports along the Mississippi River.

In contrapuntal testimony to these facts, Wehle states that TECO prefers having one provider “because of the benefits of receiving priority handling of its coal transportation needs, having first call on dedicated transportation resources and benefiting from administrative efficiencies from dealing with one entity in the day-to-day management of the waterborne coal transportation services.”

However, what TECO is calling ‘priority handling’ and ‘first call on resources’ requires a deformity of shipping industry practices so severe that only a subsidiary with mutual interests to the bid designer would be willing to bear the burden of these requirements. Furthermore, any ‘administrative efficiencies’ that might inure to TECO surely would be swallowed up by the gross inefficiencies that would occur pursuant to other requirements of the solicitation. Not the least of these inefficiencies is the fact that TECO would require shipments from foreign origins to traverse the Gulf of Mexico twice to arrive on the Florida coast.

Turning now to the issue of practical flaws in the bid and to the notions of ‘priority handling’ and ‘first call on resources,’ I wish to point out several areas in which TECO’s bid specifications extend far beyond normal industry practice. These practical requirements include requirements as aberrant as 1) requiring consent decree options ranging up to 3 million tons annually for ocean shipping alone, 2) requiring shipping variances up to 40% monthly, 3) requiring TECO to pay terminal costs after discharge of coal at the generating station, and 4) requiring terminals to maintain responsibility for port demurrage.

To cite an example of the prohibitive nature of these requirements, I want to focus on the issue of consent decrees. TECO's solicitation requires options as high as 3 million tons annually, an option rate extremely high for any utility. Such a large option comes with a high price tag, one that has been calculated to be as high as $18 million annually according to the well-established Black-Scholes method of determining the value of options. Any participating company would have to incorporate into its bid the cost of these coal options, which works to drive up the cost per ton of coal under the contract. No reasonable company would be willing to obligate 3 million tons of coal options to any contractor. The lack of response to WB-2004 serves as proof.

Furthermore, the solicitation requires bidding terminals to offer 1.5 million tons of inventory space, an amount far in excess of industry norms. In fact, if TECO Transport's competitors with respect to terminal services were to meet this requirement, they could essentially be working entirely for TECO. Why? Because maintaining 1.5 millions tons of inventory would obligate almost every square foot of their terminals. The price for such a move would indeed be great, and it is no surprise they have chosen thus far not to submit bids. Who, other than a company such as TECO Transport with shared interest of the contractor, would choose to satisfy such abnormal requirements?

As yet another very specific example, it is widely accepted industry practice that terminal facilities do not bear responsibility for cargo loss. However, the solicitation's specs require just that. Compounding the difficulty of such a requirement is that potential bidders must maintain 100 to 158 days of inventory at the terminal facility. The industry average, by the way, is approximately 40 days. Keeping inventory for 100 to 158 days will lead to loss of cargo due to wind and rain. For a terminal to have to pay for cargo lost over a 100- to 158-day period will be very expensive and virtually no terminal will be willing to take such a risk. In fact, most terminals do not provide insurance for the cargo they store. Rather, the shippers pay for the insurance.

Taken separately, these requirements might serve as anomalies of a company with idiosyncratic preferences about its business relationships. Taken together, they form a pattern that clearly grants competitive advantages to TECO Transport.

Turning now to technical flaws within TECO's defense of its solicitation, I must focus extreme attention upon the idea that one might use rail transportation rates to gauge whether shipping costs are 'reasonable and prudent.' In testimony to you, Brent Dibner, a consultant to TECO, asserts, "I am not aware of a better alternative for the purpose of evaluating Tampa Electric's waterborne transportation costs."

Joann Wehle echoes this belief when she says, "Tampa Electric believes the benchmark is still a useful tool in evaluating the prudence of its waterborne transportation costs. The rail rate comparison is the best alternative for comparison currently available." The 'benchmark' to which Wehle refers, of course, is a $25 per ton benchmark that most in the industry consider an outdated proxy with negligible value in today's shipping environment. It is akin to basing modern poverty thresholds upon the cost of a basket of food in 1960.

Wehle even goes so far as to state, "The water transportation system has saved hundreds of millions of dollars in fuel transportation costs during the period from 1998 to 2002 alone, as demonstrated by the company's actual waterborne coal transportation costs as compared to its transportation benchmark." The key phrase in Wehle's explanation is "as compared to its transportation benchmark."

The problem is, any survey of coal shipping data clearly proves that the $25 rail rate benchmark that TECO seems to hold in unquestioned esteem is steeply overpriced. The reason is two-fold. First, Florida's average rail rates are the highest in the country, because of the dependence of Florida utilities on CSX rail. Therefore, even if one wanted to make legitimate comparisons between rail and waterborne shipping methods, Florida's inflated rail prices muddy such a comparison. Second, TECO utilizes the average rail rate figures even for points of origin for which it would never in a million years consider using rail.

Consider this. TECO defends its waterborne transportation costs by comparing them to rail rates for origins such as New Orleans, Wyoming and Illinois. Who, though, would send freight by rail from New Orleans to Tampa when barge lines exist? Who would procure coal from Wyoming when one can get it from the Appalachians? Who would send coal by rail from Illinois when one could use the Mississippi and Ohio River systems? The answer must be that no one would, and that is why TECO's use of the average rail rate methodology is flawed and disingenuous.

Ms. Wehle would be better served comparing TECO's waterborne coal shipment costs to competitors in the energy industry. What she would find, among other things, is that competitors such as Lakeland Electric and Jacksonville Electric do not choose to route all of their foreign coal shipments through Louisiana. Rather, they take the obvious and orthodox approach of shipping their coal from its origin to coastal Florida. Ms. Wehle also would discover that those same competitors do not even approach the sacred $25 benchmark.

I am enclosing a critical analysis of WB-2004 that looks in more detail at the unusual and perhaps even unethical nature of TECO's solicitation.

TECO's claim that its solicitation is unbiased does not hold water, as evidenced by the paucity of companies that elected to respond to the company's bid solicitation. No company bid on ocean transportation. Not one. More than any other piece of evidence, the lack of participation by competing companies in this bid process should raise the Commission's eyebrows with regard to whether TECO conducted the bid process in a sincere and open way.

Brent Dibner states in his testimony that TECO's bid solicitation should not have prevented 'creative and innovative bids' from TECO Transport's competitors. Having assessed the stringent and aberrant requirements of the solicitation, 'creative and innovative' might as well mean impossible. TECO sent the solicitation to 24 vendors, and received not a single bid for the ocean-going portion of its solicitation. More than anything, that should serve as a blinding flash of the obvious – that TECO never intended to contract with anyone but TECO Transport for its waterborne coal transportation.

Commissioners, I urge you to act swiftly in sending a message to TECO that the Commission will not allow fuel recovery costs for inflated waterborne transportation expenses. Help draw a line in the sand for TECO's executive leadership and its stockholders that competition -- not insider dealings with sister companies -- is the way to best protect ratepayer interests. Know, as well, that I personally, with the help of others, will remain vigilant and vocal on this issue until these developments result in a fair result for TECO ratepayers. The consumers of Central Florida deserve fair utility rates.

I ask that this letter of public concern be incorporated into the record of Docket No. 030001-EI.

Sincerely,

Dear TECO Board Member:

The current bid process TECO is pursuing for transportation services is flawed and very likely to trigger results unfavorable to both TECO stockholders and consumers.

It is my belief that the suggested bid clarifications sought by the staff of the Florida Public Service Commission on July 1 served the interests of stockholders and ratepayers by assuring (as a local newspaper article noted) that the widest possible net is cast to attract real, competitive bids.

The concern of the PSC was obviously focused on the ethics of restricting the bid in such a way that pretty much only a TECO subsidiary could win the bid, a subsidiary that has held a monopoly on the transportation contract for 40 years.

The response of TECO to date has been to ignore the PSC regulators, to ignore consumer advocates' repeated requests that the PSC recommendations be followed in the interest of consumers, to ignore the complaints of Tampa residents that such dealings would result in unnecessary and unfair increases in their monthly utility bills, and to ignore the corporation's obligation to avoid acting in a way that would harm stockholders.

In PSC testimony TECO supports the claim that they are only adhering to an approved benchmark of $25/ton. No benchmark, however, even this badly flawed benchmark for waterborne costs, gives TECO cart blanche permission to inflate its true waterborne costs.

So once again, on behalf of ratepayers, stockholders, and Tampa Bay area residents, we urge you to end this bidding charade and immediately fix the process to encourage honest competitive bids before it is too late.

For the board to allow a new contract to be signed between TECO and its sister transportation company is tantamount to adding tens of millions of dollars to local utility bills for no good reason and to invite a potential firestorm of controversy.

In the interest of making you fully aware of the reasons why I believe this is such a bad deal for the public and TECO stockholders I am including a copy of a letter sent to the PSC on this matter.

Sincerely,

Re: Shutdown of Tampa Electric Company's Gannon Units 1-4

Florida Public Service Commission
CHAIRMAN JABER

Dear Chairman Jaber:

On behalf of the Tampa Bay Group of the Sierra Club's Conservation Committee, I would like to express our support that Tampa Electric be allowed to cease operation of its coal-fired units at its Gannon Station at soon as proposed.

We are aware that Tampa Electric is required by federal and state court orders to stop the burning of coal at Gannon Station by the end of 2004. We are also aware that Tampa Electric has already shut down Gannon Units 1 and 2 and plans to shut down Gannon Units 3 and 4 in the fall of 2003. From an environmental standpoint, shutting down these units sooner than the end of 2004 will result in significant reductions in air pollutants such as SO₂, NO_x, particulate matter and mercury. Not only will this benefit the environment but it will also safeguard the health of Tampa Bay citizens.

On behalf of our organization, I urge the Commission to allow Tampa Electric to cease coal-fired generation at its Gannon Station at the earliest possible date.

We appreciate your consideration of our concerns.

Very truly yours,

Florida Public Service Commission
CHAIRMAN JABER

Chairman Jaber:

As you know, I have been following closely the developments around Tampa Electric Company's solicitation for bids for barge transportation services. As you also know, it is my opinion and the opinion of many others knowledgeable of the energy industry that TECO is abusing its ratepayers by entering into inflated contracts with a sister company, TECO Transport. Further, I have advocated and will continue to advocate that the state best serves the interest of ratepayers by ensuring honesty, prudence and common sense in the bid solicitation and fuel recovery processes.

In a September 12, 2003, filing (Docket No. 030001-EI) with the Commission, and in subsequent testimony by TECO advocates, TECO defended the bid solicitation process for which is has come under fire. In this filing and in these testimonies, TECO makes a number of claims about its solicitation in an attempt to validate a process that can have only one result: the awarding of TECO's river barging, transloading and ocean barging contracts to TECO Transport.

By writing to you today, I hope to show that several of what TECO considers pillars of its defense of this solicitation are unstable and weak at best. I will assert that those pillars cannot reasonably sustain a controversial bid that could impact TECO ratepayers to the tune of millions of excess dollars. Rather, those pillars crumble under the weight of closer scrutiny, especially TECO's seminal claim that rail rates are a reasonable proxy for determining reasonable barge shipping rates.

Initially, though, allow me to make several crucial points about this bid process in general. First, it is out of the ordinary for contractors of barge and terminal services to desire a contract as lengthy as five years. Rather, contractors generally choose very short contract periods, such as one or two years, or even shorter if terminals and barge companies will allow. This gives contractors the opportunity to take advantage of changing market conditions. Also, contractors rarely wish to contract with only one barging company or terminal service. Why? Because contracting with multiple companies allows a contractor to create competition, take advantage of flexibility and foster market conditions favorable to their bottom line.

It should raise serious concern among regulatory bodies, then, when large utilities such as TECO buck industry norms and seek long-term contracts with a sole source provider. It should also raise concern that TECO seems unwilling to take advantage of opportunities to buy goods and services on the spot market, even though goods and services on the spot market often are available at considerable value relative to contracted products.

Second, we must not forget that TECO can, if it wishes to, ship imported coal directly to Tampa. One of its smaller competitors, Lakeland Electric, recently signed a contract with CSX to deliver coal for a rate of $16.50/ton, delivering it from coalfield to plant. Compare that rate to TECO's projected bid price, which is almost $24/ton. The Commission must not allow TECO to ignore its competitors' practices. One fact is clear: the Port of Tampa can just as easily accept ocean-going, coal-laden vessels as it can ocean-going barges sailing from Davant, Louisiana. The dimensions of so-called handy-sized vessels are no greater than TECO Transport's barges that originate from Davant. These facts are indisputable, and any independent survey of the Port of Tampa's channel depths will confirm this fact. TECO, though, chooses to ignore these facts, deciding instead to ship imported coal past Tampa to Davant, and then back to Tampa on TECO Transport's barges. TECO Transport is able to charge $13.50 for the passage of barges from Davant to Tampa, adding to the bottom line of its parent company's balance sheet.

Third, there is evidence that TECO, if it wished to branch outside its own subsidiaries, could do business with other ports along the Mississippi River at lower prices. In fact, one terminal in the vicinity of TECO Transport's Davant terminal is offering transloading rates as low as $1.25/ton. I will disclose the name of that terminal facility if asked to do so by the Commission. Similarly, TECO does not have to send coal to Davant for blending, as its power plants are capable of blending coal. TECO's Gannon plant, for example, is now a gas facility and has ample facilities for coal blending. The Big Bend facility also has blending capabilities.

Those, of course are my broad observations on the process, and they raise, in my opinion, important questions about TECO's behavior with respect to this solicitation. Why would a company as large as TECO seek to enter into long-term contracts with a sole source for river barge, transloading and ocean barge services? Why would a contractor choose a costly, circuitous route for imported coal when its competitors in the Tampa area ship directly to the Port of Tampa? And, finally, why would a company use rail rates to determine whether bids for waterborne rates are fair? I assert that the answers to all of those questions revolve around one important theme: TECO's unwavering effort to contract with TECO Transport for river barge, terminal and ocean barge services.

There are a number of logistical, practical and technical flaws in TECO's solicitation (WB-2004). Logistical requirements of the bid solicitation grant a substantial competitive advantage to TECO Transport. The attached critical analysis of WB-2004 unpacks these logistical requirements and shows multiple ways in which TECO lays its bid solicitation upon the doorstep of TECO Transport. While TECO's September 12 filing and testimonies claim that the prices it pays to TECO Transport are "reasonable and prudent" and that it would be appropriate for TECO to recover costs associated with these prices, I assert that the company stretches the definition of reason and goes beyond the boundaries of prudence.

For example, the solicitation's requirement that the bidder must use "sources convenient to Mississippi and Ohio River systems" and that "terminal facilities should be accessible to Mississippi River barge traffic" eliminates a wide range of possible ports in the Gulf of Mexico that are not located in Louisiana. Although Joann Wehle, TECO's Director of Wholesale Marketing and Fuels, testified before you that TECO's coal portfolio

“necessitates that the transloading and storage terminal facilities be accessible to Mississippi River barge traffic,” a wholesale funneling of shipments to Davant, Louisiana, does not always serve the best interest of ratepayers.

According to requirements of the solicitation, a bidder would not be able, for example, to use a port along the west coast of Florida to receive foreign coal shipments. The bidder, instead, would have to direct foreign coal shipments to the Gulf Coast of Louisiana before then directing coal to its final destination. However, Tampa Electric’s competitors, such as Lakeland Electric, regularly use the Port of Tampa to receive inbound coal from origins in South America and elsewhere. This element of the solicitation, then, would seem to create unnecessary shipping expenses that drive up the cost of electricity for Tampa Electric customers.

As another example, the solicitation limits imports of foreign coal to only 1 million tons, a mere fraction of the coal required under the solicitation. This limit has several important consequences. First, limiting coal imports precludes potential bidders from procuring less expensive coal that is chemically similar to domestic products. The cheapest petcoke currently on the market, for example, comes from Venezuela. The result for end consumers of Tampa Electric energy would be unnecessarily high pass-through costs for fuel materials. Second, limiting foreign coal continues to give a competitive advantage to ports not on the west coast of Florida. If nearly all of the coal shipped pursuant to the solicitation comes from domestic sources, than west Florida ports will lose out on the possibility of receiving coal from foreign sources. The beneficiaries of such an arrangement are bidders with ports along the Mississippi River.

In contrapuntal testimony to these facts, Wehle states that TECO prefers having one provider “because of the benefits of receiving priority handling of its coal transportation needs, having first call on dedicated transportation resources and benefiting from administrative efficiencies from dealing with one entity in the day-to-day management of the waterborne coal transportation services.”

However, what TECO is calling ‘priority handling’ and ‘first call on resources’ requires a deformity of shipping industry practices so severe that only a subsidiary with mutual interests to the bid designer would be willing to bear the burden of these requirements. Furthermore, any ‘administrative efficiencies’ that might inure to TECO surely would be swallowed up by the gross inefficiencies that would occur pursuant to other requirements of the solicitation. Not the least of these inefficiencies is the fact that TECO would require shipments from foreign origins to traverse the Gulf of Mexico twice to arrive on the Florida coast.

Turning now to the issue of practical flaws in the bid and to the notions of ‘priority handling’ and ‘first call on resources,’ I wish to point out several areas in which TECO’s bid specifications extend far beyond normal industry practice. These practical requirements include requirements as aberrant as 1) requiring consent decree options ranging up to 3 million tons annually for ocean shipping alone, 2) requiring shipping variances up to 40% monthly, 3) requiring TECO to pay terminal costs after discharge of coal at the generating station, and 4) requiring terminals to maintain responsibility for port demurrage.

To cite an example of the prohibitive nature of these requirements, I want to focus on the issue of consent decrees. TECO's solicitation requires options as high as 3 million tons annually, an option rate extremely high for any utility. Such a large option comes with a high price tag, one that has been calculated to be as high as $18 million annually according to the well-established Black-Scholes method of determining the value of options. Any participating company would have to incorporate into its bid the cost of these coal options, which works to drive up the cost per ton of coal under the contract. No reasonable company would be willing to obligate 3 million tons of coal options to any contractor. The lack of response to WB-2004 serves as proof.

Furthermore, the solicitation requires bidding terminals to offer 1.5 million tons of inventory space, an amount far in excess of industry norms. In fact, if TECO Transport's competitors with respect to terminal services were to meet this requirement, they could essentially be working entirely for TECO. Why? Because maintaining 1.5 millions tons of inventory would obligate almost every square foot of their terminals. The price for such a move would indeed be great, and it is no surprise they have chosen thus far not to submit bids. Who, other than a company such as TECO Transport with shared interest of the contractor, would choose to satisfy such abnormal requirements?

As yet another very specific example, it is widely accepted industry practice that terminal facilities do not bear responsibility for cargo loss. However, the solicitation's specs require just that. Compounding the difficulty of such a requirement is that potential bidders must maintain 100 to 158 days of inventory at the terminal facility. The industry average, by the way, is approximately 40 days. Keeping inventory for 100 to 158 days will lead to loss of cargo due to wind and rain. For a terminal to have to pay for cargo lost over a 100- to 158-day period will be very expensive and virtually no terminal will be willing to take such a risk. In fact, most terminals do not provide insurance for the cargo they store. Rather, the shippers pay for the insurance.

Taken separately, these requirements might serve as anomalies of a company with idiosyncratic preferences about its business relationships. Taken together, they form a pattern that clearly grants competitive advantages to TECO Transport.

Turning now to technical flaws within TECO's defense of its solicitation, I must focus extreme attention upon the idea that one might use rail transportation rates to gauge whether shipping costs are 'reasonable and prudent.' In testimony to you, Brent Dibner, a consultant to TECO, asserts, "I am not aware of a better alternative for the purpose of evaluating Tampa Electric's waterborne transportation costs."

Joann Wehle echoes this belief when she says, "Tampa Electric believes the benchmark is still a useful tool in evaluating the prudence of its waterborne transportation costs. The rail rate comparison is the best alternative for comparison currently available." The 'benchmark' to which Wehle refers, of course, is a $25 per ton benchmark that most in the industry consider an outdated proxy with negligible value in today's shipping environment. It is akin to basing modern poverty thresholds upon the cost of a basket of food in 1960.

Wehle even goes so far as to state, "The water transportation system has saved hundreds of millions of dollars in fuel transportation costs during the period from 1998 to 2002 alone, as demonstrated by the company's actual waterborne coal transportation costs as compared to its transportation benchmark." The key phrase in Wehle's explanation is "as compared to its transportation benchmark."

The problem is, any survey of coal shipping data clearly proves that the $25 rail rate benchmark that TECO seems to hold in unquestioned esteem is steeply overpriced. The reason is two-fold. First, Florida's average rail rates are the highest in the country, because of the dependence of Florida utilities on CSX rail. Therefore, even if one wanted to make legitimate comparisons between rail and waterborne shipping methods, Florida's inflated rail prices muddy such a comparison. Second, TECO utilizes the average rail rate figures even for points of origin for which it would never in a million years consider using rail.

Consider this. TECO defends its waterborne transportation costs by comparing them to rail rates for origins such as New Orleans, Wyoming and Illinois. Who, though, would send freight by rail from New Orleans to Tampa when barge lines exist? Who would procure coal from Wyoming when one can get it from the Appalachians? Who would send coal by rail from Illinois when one could use the Mississippi and Ohio River systems? The answer must be that no one would, and that is why TECO's use of the average rail rate methodology is flawed and disingenuous.

Ms. Wehle would be better served comparing TECO's waterborne coal shipment costs to competitors in the energy industry. What she would find, among other things, is that competitors such as Lakeland Electric and Jacksonville Electric do not choose to route all of their foreign coal shipments through Louisiana. Rather, they take the obvious and orthodox approach of shipping their coal from its origin to coastal Florida. Ms. Wehle also would discover that those same competitors do not even approach the sacred $25 benchmark.

I am enclosing a critical analysis of WB-2004 that looks in more detail at the unusual and perhaps even unethical nature of TECO's solicitation.

TECO's claim that its solicitation is unbiased does not hold water, as evidenced by the paucity of companies that elected to respond to the company's bid solicitation. No company bid on ocean transportation. Not one. More than any other piece of evidence, the lack of participation by competing companies in this bid process should raise the Commission's eyebrows with regard to whether TECO conducted the bid process in a sincere and open way.

Brent Dibner states in his testimony that TECO's bid solicitation should not have prevented 'creative and innovative bids' from TECO Transport's competitors. Having assessed the stringent and aberrant requirements of the solicitation, 'creative and innovative' might as well mean impossible. TECO sent the solicitation to 24 vendors, and received not a single bid for the ocean-going portion of its solicitation. More than anything, that should serve as a blinding flash of the obvious – that TECO never intended to contract with anyone but TECO Transport for its waterborne coal transportation.

Commissioners, I urge you to act swiftly in sending a message to TECO that the Commission will not allow fuel recovery costs for inflated waterborne transportation expenses. Help draw a line in the sand for TECO's executive leadership and its stockholders that competition -- not insider dealings with sister companies -- is the way to best protect ratepayer interests. Know, as well, that I personally, with the help of others, will remain vigilant and vocal on this issue until these developments result in a fair result for TECO ratepayers. The consumers of Central Florida deserve fair utility rates.

I ask that this letter of public concern be incorporated into the record of Docket No. 030001-EI.

Dear TECO Board Member:

The current bid process TECO is pursuing for transportation services is flawed and very likely to trigger results unfavorable to both TECO stockholders and consumers.

It is my belief that the suggested bid clarifications sought by the staff of the Florida Public Service Commission on July 1 served the interests of stockholders and ratepayers by assuring (as a local newspaper article noted) that the widest possible net is cast to attract real, competitive bids.

The concern of the PSC was obviously focused on the ethics of restricting the bid in such a way that pretty much only a TECO subsidiary could win the bid, a subsidiary that has held a monopoly on the transportation contract for 40 years.

The response of TECO to date has been to ignore the PSC regulators, to ignore consumer advocates' repeated requests that the PSC recommendations be followed in the interest of consumers, to ignore the complaints of Tampa residents that such dealings would result in unnecessary and unfair increases in their monthly utility bills, and to ignore the corporation's obligation to avoid acting in a way that would harm stockholders.

In PSC testimony TECO supports the claim that they are only adhering to an approved benchmark of $25/ton. No benchmark, however, even this badly flawed benchmark for waterborne costs, gives TECO cart blanche permission to inflate its true waterborne costs.

So once again, on behalf of ratepayers, stockholders, and Tampa Bay area residents, we urge you to end this bidding charade and immediately fix the process to encourage honest competitive bids before it is too late.

For the board to allow a new contract to be signed between TECO and its sister transportation company is tantamount to adding tens of millions of dollars to local utility bills for no good reason and to invite a potential firestorm of controversy.

In the interest of making you fully aware of the reasons why I believe this is such a bad deal for the public and TECO stockholders I am including a copy of a letter sent to the PSC on this matter.

Sincerely,

RE: TECO Gannon Station's Conversion from Coal to Gas

Dear Chairman Jaber:

It has come to our attention that TECO's plans to cease burning coal at the Gannon Station this fall, some one year ahead of schedule, are somehow being challenged in front of your Board. As the Executive Director of the local environmental agency responsible for protecting the air and the waters of Hillsborough County, I strongly urge you to consider the benefits of an early conversion to natural gas at this facility before you render any final determinations.

Late in 1999 and early in the year 2000, TECO signed enforceable agreements with both the State of Florida and the U.S. EPA respectively, to reduce air pollution from Gannon Station. The agreements require TECO to essentially repower with natural gas using a combination of new construction and some of the existing infrastructure. The EPC actively participated in the investigations which lead to these historic agreements, and we feel we have a vested interest in their successful conclusion.

This conversion is critical to the reduction of ground level ozone in Hillsborough County and the surrounding Bay Area because it will significantly reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from the TECO plant. Ozone irritates the respiratory system, causing coughing, choking, and shortness of breath. These effects are most pronounced in the more vulnerable members of our community, children and the elderly. In addition, prolonged exposure to ozone results in a gradual deterioration of lung tissue.

From 1981 until 1996, Hillsborough County was unable to meet the one-hour NAAQS for ozone, and was designated as an ozone "nonattainment" area by the EPA. With the designation came requirements for stricter air pollution controls. After years of effort by federal, state, and local regulators, the air quality was finally improved to the point where we were able to meet the standards and redesignated as a maintenance area. However, this redesignation could change as we now must meet a new more stringent eight-hour ozone standard. Just last week, we issued an air advisory as we had two unhealthy days because of 8 hour ozone exceedances. This reminds us, we could once again face a nonattainment designation by the EPA, and the expensive clean up plan that would follow. Thus we are most anxious to see this TECO coal-fired plant cleaned up before another ozone season is upon us.

Thank you for your consideration. Please feel free to call on me if we can be of any assistance to the Public Service Commission on this issue.

Re: Docket No. 030001-EI Fuel and Purchase Power Cost Recovery Clause with Generating Performance Incentive Factor
Document No. 09881-03 - (Confidential) Direct Testimony of Kathy L. Welch with Exhibit K LW-1

Dear Ms. Bayo:

I am writing on behalf of Florida Power & Light Company ("FPL") to request an unredacted copy of the direct testimony of Kathy L. Welch and her Exhibit K LW-1, which together comprise Document No. 09881-03. The only copy of this document that FPL has received has the confidential portions redacted. FPL needs to see the confidential portions in order to evaluate it and formulate rebuttal testimony, if required. FPL also needs to see the confidential portions in order to determine whether to request continuing confidential treatment of same as contemplated in Staff's October 9, 2003 transmittal memorandum (Document No. 09890-3).

FPL understands from discussions with Staff that the information redacted from Document 09881-3 was designated as confidential because it constitutes or reflects FPL information for which FPL has requested confidentiality in connection with the audit that is the subject of Ms. Welch's testimony. Therefore, disclosure of this information to FPL will not compromise its confidentiality. FPL will, of course, protect against further disclosure all information for which it seeks confidential protection.

The filing deadline for rebuttal testimony in this docket is next Wednesday, October 15. Therefore, it is essential that FPL be provided an unredacted copy of Document No. 09881-3 as soon as possible. If there is any other information that you need in connection with this request, please contact me immediately at 850-521-3900.

Thank you for your assistance.

Re: Shutdown of Tampa Electric Company's Gannon Plant Coal-fired Units 1-4 and conversion to natural gas fuel

Dear Chairman Jaber:

The Tampa Audubon Society supports the conversion of the coal-fired units at Tampa Electric Company's Gannon Plant to cleaner burning natural gas at the earliest possible date.

We understand that Tampa Electric is obligated under federal and state court orders to stop using coal to generate electricity at the Gannon Plant in Tampa on or before December 31, 2004. We know that Tampa Electric has already shut down Gannon Units 1, 2 and 5 and plans to shut down Gannon Units 3, 4 and 6 this fall, converting these units to natural gas generation. Shutting down these units on the schedule Tampa Electric has announced will bring about significant reductions in the emissions of SO₂, NO_x, mercury and particulate matter. Natural gas is a significantly cleaner burning fuel than coal. Using natural gas instead of coal to generate electricity will improve the air quality and environment of the Tampa Bay area, including water quality within Tampa Bay itself. This change will provide a distinct and tangible environmental improvement for this biologically and economically important estuary, and the health of its residents, both the human and wildlife populations. Such a change will have broad regional impact which will be felt throughout this region of the State.

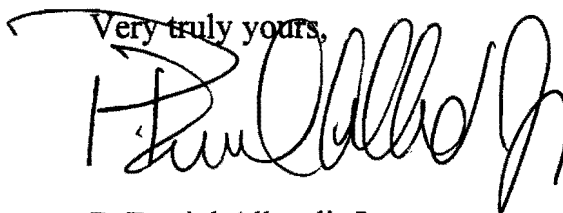

It should be noted that the Environmental Protection Agency began, as of October 1, issuing daily alerts for smog and soot pollution in approximately 150 locations prone to such pollution, including the City of Tampa. The Tampa Audubon Society urges the Commission to support Tampa Electric's schedule to shut down coal-fired generation and convert electrical generation to natural gas at the Gannon Plant this fall. Such a move would serve to immediately begin addressing the Bay area's poor air quality, and also provide long-term economic benefits to this part of Florida through increased health and air quality benefits, and decreased deposition of pollutants into this area's most important resource, Tampa Bay. These benefits would more than offset any short term concerns over potential rate increases.

Thank you for your consideration of this very important regional matter. The promise of cleaner air and water resulting from a switch to natural gas will provide individual health benefits, as well as long-term economic benefits, to our area.

Very truly yours,

P. Daniel Alberdi, Jr.

Subject: Press Release: Fuel Adjustments Set For Electric Utilities

NEWS RELEASE

FUEL ADJUSTMENTS SET FOR ELECTRIC UTILITIES

TALLAHASSEE — Annual fuel adjustment charges approved by the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) and their impact on residential customers of investor-owned utilities are listed below.

These adjustments reflect fluctuations in the price paid by utilities for fuel and will become effective during the January 2004 billing cycle. The Commission allows utilities to recover fuel-related costs that are prudently incurred. The following monthly amounts are based on 1,000 kilowatt-hours (kWh) of use:

- Residential customers of Florida Power and Light will pay $86.43 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity. This reflects a decrease of $0.30 when compared with the current amount of $86.73.
- Residential customers of Progress Energy Florida will pay $89.11 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity, which is $5.40 more than the current level of $83.71.
- A residential customer of Gulf Power Company will pay $80.08 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity, which is $2.64 more than the current level of $77.44.
- Customers of Florida Public Utilities Company's (FPUC) Marianna division will pay $63.11 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity. This reflects an increase of $1.90 when compared with the current amount of $61.21. FPUC's Fernandina Beach division customers will pay $49.93 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours instead of the current amount of $57.73, a decrease of $7.80.
- The amounts for residential customers of Tampa Electric Company will be available next week once PSC staff has had an opportunity to credit the operation and maintenance (O&M) savings to customers associated with the company's decision to cease operations at its Gannon Units 1-4 prior to December 31, 2004.

Re: Request for Certified Copies

Dear Kay:

This will follow up Pat's phone call to you regarding our request for certified copies of two documents.

The first document is a confidential document (Commission Document No. 10488) filed on October 23, 2003 in Docket No. 030001-EI. It is a filing memorandum and attached testimony of William B. McNulty. We are requesting a certified copy of this document on behalf of our client, Tampa Electric Company. The document was filed by the Staff as a confidential document because it discloses and compares Tampa Electric's confidential waterborne coal transportation contract information with the prices quoted by CSXT to Tampa Electric in bids the railroad submitted in 2003. Thus, Tampa Electric is requesting a certified copy of a document that contains Tampa Electric's own confidential information and information regarding CSXT that Tampa Electric already possesses and which Tampa Electric provided to the Commission on a confidential basis to protect CSXT. Tampa Electric will obviously protect the certified copy from being publicly disclosed in order to continue protecting its own interests and those of CSXT.

The other document we are requesting, Document No. 10024 filed on October 14, 2003, is, I believe, a redacted public version of Mr. McNulty's testimony filed in Docket No. 030001-EI regarding Progress Energy Florida's waterborne coal transportation. The copy of this document that we have has the confidential information blacked out. If the Commission's filed copy of this document is redacted as well, then it is not the confidential version and does not need to be protected. We are only requesting a certified copy of the non-confidential public version of the testimony pertaining to Progress Energy Florida.
