It was just brought to my attention that what we have processed as filings were the two hand-delivered documents. None of the e-filings will be processed, since they are virtually identical to what was hand-delivered.

Let me know if questions on this matter.

Thanks.

Subject: follow-up to conversation (Docket 030458)

Thanks, Alissa, for answering my questions on the Holiday filings we received yesterday. Per our conversation, only the first electronic submission will be processed as a filing. The two later submissions that are virtually identical to the first (with an added signature as I understand it being the only change) will NOT be treated as filings. The hand-delivered version has already been processed as a filing.

Also, per our discussion, future e-filings from Nabors will not be followed by a paper copy.

You will also indicated you would review the e-filing requirements on the PSC's Website to ensure future e-filings are prepared correctly prior to admission.

Thanks again!

Kay

Please advise as soon as possible if this submission is a duplication of what was electronically submitted by Alissa Weiner at 4:22 and 4:24 on 8/21. If it is a duplication, we won't process your submission.

We also received by hand delivery at 4:54 what appears to be a duplication of the 4:22 (and possibly 4:24 and 4:41) filings. This was processed and thus will appear twice in the docket, the second time with a note indicating it is apparently a duplicate.

For future electronic filing, be aware that you are not required to follow up the e-filing with a signed paper copy. Please review the e-filing requirements on our Website; these instructions provide the information you need to properly e-file.

Please let me know if you have any questions related to e-filing.

Thank you.

PARTIES

Ms. Weiner, on Monday 4/10/06 you submitted for filing electronically Holiday Waterworks' prefiled testimony of Gary Deremer. Prefiled testimony is not an eligible document for filing electronically. However, because staff here in Records accepted the filing, it will be considered filed.

Please take a few moments to review the "e-filings how to" document on the PSC's Website before e-filing again (click on the button in the lower right area of the Website). You will find in those instructions a listing of filing types not eligible for e-filing; you will also find all information that must be included in your transmittal e-mail.

After reading the instructions, please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.
