Kim,

I just spoke with Ms. Klindworth and was advised that she did not include docket 000121A-TP in her request that we received on 5-10-07 (copy of which was given to you that had several dockets listed) at that time also updated MCD. I notice that the Company Code in TX237 in this docket was not updated per your automatic e-mail that you receive from MCD. Please correct that as their mail is going to the wrong address in this docket. Also, Ms. Klindworth will check with Mr. Diamond to see if he wants to have Ms. Davis's name added to the docket as an interested person and advised in writing as to that request. Advised Ms. Klindworth that if we add Ms. Davis to the docket, that she will receive information either by mail or fax, no e-mail. Main thing is to update Company Code TX237 (last update that you did on this in the docket was 7-17-06.)

Ms. Klindworth, I have forwarded this on to Kim Pena for handling the correction in the above docket.

Thanks, required by Applicable Law to provide any Service, payment or benefit, otherwise required to be provided to Covad hereunder, then Verizon may discontinue immediately the provision of any arrangement for such Service, payment or benefit, except that existing arrangements for such Services that are already provided to Covad shall be provided for a transition period of up to forty-five (45) days, unless a different notice period or different conditions are specified in this Agreement (including, but not limited to, in an applicable Tariff) or Applicable Law for termination of such Service in which event such specified period and/or conditions shall apply.

One portion of the GNAPs decision addressed WHEN change-in-law provisions should be triggered:

XIII. EFFECTIVE DATE OF CHANGE-IN-LAW

ARGUMENTS

GNAPs urges that a change-in-law should be implemented when there is a final adjudicatory determination which materially affects the terms and/or conditions under which the parties exchange traffic. Verizon, however, maintains that a change-in-law should be implemented when it takes effect. GNAPs's proposed contract language would ignore the law, including effective orders of this Commission, FCC, and the courts. Verizon's proposal requires only that the parties follow the law.

GNAPs' position is that a law should not take effect until tested and ruled upon by a commission or judicial body. That proposal is inconsistent with logic, as well as any known practice within our legal system. Laws are controlling from the time of the effective date. Many laws are never challenged but are, nevertheless, controlling as of the effective date. Many are challenged upon implementation and, at the discretion of the hearing official or judge, may or may not be stayed pending resolution.

DECISION

We are more persuaded by the position of Verizon in this issue. That position is that a change-in-law should be implemented when it takes effect. We also note that Verizon's position has been consistently upheld in various other states. GNAPs was unable to cite an instance where its position has been upheld, and makes no argument in support of its position. Accordingly, we adopt Verizon's position on this issue.¹⁴

¹⁴ Order on Arbitration, Order No. PSC-03-0805-FOF-TP (GNAPs Order) at 48-49, Docket No. 011666-TP, issued July 9, 2003.

RECEIVED
JAN 20 PM 12:58
COMMISSION
CLERK

However, the more relevant issue of whether the Parties should have multiple change in law provisions within the same interconnection agreement was also addressed in the GNAPs Order.

The Commission rejected the additional change of law language urged by GNAPs as follows:

IX. CHANGE-IN-LAW PROVISION

ARGUMENTS

Though GNAPs acknowledges that in Verizon's proposed Interconnection Agreement it grants the right to renegotiate the reciprocal compensation obligations if the current law is overturned or otherwise revised, GNAPs argues that it is inadequate. Verizon argues, however, that GNAPs has not demonstrated that the general change-in-law provision is inadequate to address any decision that modifies the ISP Remand Order. Verizon asserts that the undisputed, general change-in-law provision requires the parties to negotiate an amendment if a change in law alters the FCC's reciprocal compensation rules resulting from the ISP Remand Order. The parties do not need another change-in-law provision devoted to the ISP Remand Order.

The Virginia Commission held "The general change of law provision in each interconnection agreement is sufficient to address any changes that may result from the ongoing proceedings relating to the ISP Remand Order." Virginia Arbitration Order, ¶ 254

We believe there are few industries more dynamic than telecommunications. The possibility of a change in the law affecting any provision of any interconnection agreement is ever present; thus, the general change-in-law provision. It is not apparent to us that the general change-in-law provision is inadequate in the event of a change in the law affecting the ISP issue. Additionally, it would be inconsistent to include a specific provision for ISP issues and not for other issues which may also see change in the foreseeable future.

We find that the parties' interconnection agreement need not include a change-in-law provision specifically devoted to the ISP Remand Order.¹⁵

What Verizon proposed in this arbitration was akin to the additional change in law provision this Commission rejected in Order No. PSC-03-0805-FOF-TP in the GNAPs

¹⁵ GNAPs Order at 40-41.
