Mr. Simpson,

Dave Rhodes forwarded your question to me since our office is processing the application. The public meeting will be September 17. They applied for a construction/testing permit. The well is constructed but they need this permit to begin using it. After the meeting we can proceed with an Intent to Issue, which also gets advertised in the newspaper. After a 14-day period, if no one files for an administrative hearing a permit will be issued. My estimate of when they will have the permit is early October.

After a period of use, they will apply for an operation permit which receives the same public notices as this construction/testing permit does. Let me know if you have any other questions.

Hi David:

I was speaking to Mr. Chris DeSpain (Utility Manager) and he said they were waiting for a permit approval for the final phase of the construction of the well and its activation. From my understanding so far from Chris, they will have a Town meeting on September 17 to look at the concerns from the public regarding the use of the deep well injection project. Then, I believe you will issue an operation permit. If that is right, do you have any idea as to when that permit will be issued?
