Docket No. 140142-EM
Filed: August 14, 2014

FLORIDA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVES
ASSOCIATION, INC'S
MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE
AMICUS CURIAE MEMORANDUM OF LAW

The Florida Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc. ("FECA") moves the Commission for leave to appear as Amicus Curiae and to file the attached Memorandum of Law addressing legal issues raised in the Petition filed in this proceeding on behalf of the Board of Indian River County ("County") and, as grounds therefore, states:

1. Movant's name and address are:

Florida Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc.
2916 Apalachee Parkway
Tallahassee, FL 32301

2. Copies of all notices and pleadings with respect to this Motion should be furnished to:

William B. Willingham
Michelle Hershel
Florida Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc.
2916 Apalachee Parkway
Tallahassee, FL 32301
fecabill@embarqmail.com
mhershel@feca.com
Phone: (850)877-6166
Fax: (850) 656-5485

3. FECA is a Florida corporation and a trade association that represents almost all of Florida's electric cooperatives. All 17 of FECA's members are electric cooperatives, and all 17 members are regulated by the Florida Public Service Commission (the “Commission”) pursuant to Chapter 366, Florida Statutes. FECA’s members that are distribution cooperatives provide retail service to approximately 800,000 retail accounts that are located throughout 53 Florida counties. FECA’s members also own and operate generation and transmission facilities throughout Florida.

4. One of the purposes of FECA is to represent the interests of its members in proceedings before the Commission that could impact its members and their consumer/members. Given its long-standing representation of the majority of Florida’s electric cooperatives in Commission proceedings, FECA believes it is qualified to assist the Commission as Amicus Curiae concerning certain legal issues which must be resolved in this proceeding.

5. FECA and its members have a significant and abiding interest in the preservation and enforcement of the regulatory provisions set forth in Chapter 366.04, Florida Statutes. These interests include:

- a. the approval of territorial agreements between and among rural electric cooperatives, municipal electric utilities, and other electric utilities;
- b. the avoidance of territorial disputes;
- c. the avoidance of further uneconomic duplication of generation, transmission and distribution facilities;
- d. the planning, development and maintenance of a coordinated electric power grid throughout Florida;

6. The County seeks a declaration on a number of issues regarding the effect of the expiration of the franchise agreement between the County and the City of Vero Beach (“COVB”), including the effect on the territorial agreement between the COVB and the Florida Power & Light Company (“FPL”) and the effect on COVB’s facilities that are in the County’s rights-of-way. The relief requested by the County could have devastating impacts on the reliability of the electric grid and on the electric rates for cooperative consumer/members.

7. FECA requests that it be allowed to file the attached Amicus Curiae Memorandum of Law addressing the issue of whether a utility can rely on Commission-approved territorial agreements and the territorial provisions in section 366.04, Florida Statutes, to define the service area that it must plan to serve now and in the future, or whether a local government can unilaterally take away a utility's customers and service area whenever a franchise agreement expires or if there is no franchise agreement.

8. Consent of parties. FECA has contacted counsel for the County, Mr. Floyd Self, and is authorized to represent that the County takes no position on whether the PSC should permit FECA to file an amicus brief in this matter.

WHEREFORE, FECA respectfully requests that the Commission accept and consider the attached Amicus Curiae Memorandum of Law in its disposition of the Petition filed in this proceeding.

Dated this 14th day of August, 2014.

Docket No. 140142-EM
Filed: August 14, 2014

FLORIDA ELECTRIC COOPERATIVES ASSOCIATION, INC'S
AMICUS CURIAE MEMORANDUM OF LAW

The Florida Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc. ("FECA") has requested leave to file this Amicus Curiae legal memorandum addressing the issues raised in Indian River County's ("County") "Petition for a Declaratory Statement and Such Other Relief As May be Required" ("Petition"). The issues before the Florida Public Service Commission ("Commission") are of great concern to FECA, the 17 electric cooperatives that are members of FECA, and to the consumer-members that are served by those electric cooperatives. The Petition poses numerous questions and issues for the Commission to address, but for FECA's purposes there is one issue that is extremely significant - whether a utility can rely on Commission-approved territorial agreements and the territorial provisions in section 366.04, Florida Statutes, to define the service area that it must plan to serve now and in the future, or whether a local government can unilaterally take away a utility's customers and service area whenever a franchise agreement expires or if there is no franchise agreement. FECA believes the law is extremely clear that the Commission is the exclusive authority to determine which electric utility will serve in the area at issue in this proceeding. Moreover, since there is a Commission-approved territorial agreement in place between the City of Vero Beach ("COVB") and Florida Power & Light Company ("FPL"), COVB must serve the area until such time that the Commission approves modifications to the agreement.¹ Contrary to the County's assertions, the granting or expiration of a franchise agreement has no bearing on a Commission-approved territorial agreement or which electric utility will serve in the area, and the County's threat to evict COVB from the franchise area is without any legal authority or foundation. The County also lacks authority to deny COVB's use of its rights-of-way, and the County does not have the option of providing electric service within the Franchise area. Therefore, FECA believes the Commission should deny the Petition.

The Grid Bill

In 1974 the Grid Bill² was enacted, which gave the Commission jurisdiction over municipally-owned utilities and electric cooperatives for the first time, and which clarified and codified the Commission's jurisdiction to define and control the service areas of all electric utilities in Florida. The Grid Bill includes comprehensive language for the Commission to regulate electric utility service boundaries and to determine which utility shall serve an area or an individual customer when service boundaries have not been clearly defined. Pursuant to section 366.04(1), Florida Statutes, the Commission's jurisdiction under the Grid Bill is "exclusive and superior," and the grant of exclusivity is clear and unequivocal:

The jurisdiction conferred upon the commission shall be exclusive and superior to that of all other boards, agencies, political subdivisions, municipalities, towns, villages, or counties, and, in case of conflict therewith, all lawful acts, orders, rules, and regulations of the commission shall in each instance prevail.

The Legislature clearly intended that the Commission, not the County, shall be the exclusive authority to decide which utility or utilities shall provide electric service throughout a county.

The Grid Bill encourages territorial agreements between all utilities in order to prevent the uneconomic duplication of utility facilities throughout Florida. FECA and its members have a significant and abiding interest in the preservation and enforcement of the Grid Bill. Those interests include: (i) the approval of territorial agreements between and among rural electric cooperatives, municipal electric utilities, and other electric utilities; (ii) the avoidance of territorial disputes; (iii) the avoidance of further uneconomic duplication of generation, transmission and distribution facilities; (iv) the planning, development and maintenance of a coordinated electric power grid throughout Florida; and (v) minimizing the cost of electricity in Florida. These interests are critical to an electric utility's ability to plan for future growth based upon long term growth projections. Planning for generation, transmission, and substations requires multi-decade forecasts, and it is not uncommon for distribution facility planning to involve multi-decade forecasts. To assist with planning, many utilities have entered into Commission-approved territorial agreements with neighboring utilities, which define the area that each utility must plan to serve.

¹ Public Service Commission v. Fuller, 551 So. 2d 1210 (Fla. 1989).

² Fla. Stat. §§ 366.04(2) - 366.04(5).

The County's assertion that it can abrogate the Commission's exclusive jurisdiction to implement, supervise, and enforce electric service territories and territorial agreements in Florida has serious implications for electric utility regulations statewide. Forecasting is challenging enough when a utility knows the area that it will serve, but it would become a guessing game if a local government were allowed to evict a utility from an area it serves and had planned to serve for decades. Such a result would undermine the clear language of the Grid Bill regarding a coordinated grid and the prevention of further uneconomic duplication of facilities, and would lead to an unacceptable outcome by allowing local governments, not the Legislature or the Commission, to be the ultimate decision-maker as to where a utility can serve. The Legislature clearly did not give local governments powers that are superior to the Commission's in this area. Under the County's scenario, utilities' stranded cost could quickly mount, and rates would increase unnecessarily due to uneconomic duplication of facilities, which is exactly what the Grid Bill is supposed to prevent.

The Facts

Prior to 1987 the COVB had served the disputed area for decades without entering into a franchise agreement with the County. FECA believes the COVB's facilities in the County were, and are, located in state, city, and federally-owed rights-of-way, in private easements, and some facilities are in the County's rights-of-way. In 1972, the Commission approved the original territorial agreement between COVB and FPL, and the Commission has approved several modifications to the agreement. The territorial agreement grants COVB exclusive authority to serve the disputed area. The agreement also provides that FPL cannot serve the disputed area. The franchise agreement entered into between the COVB and the County in 1987 is irrelevant to the territorial agreement. Moreover, the termination of the franchise agreement does not have any effect on the COVB's right to continue using state, city, and federally-owed rights-of-way or private easements. FECA believes the termination of the agreement does not affect COVB's rights to continue using the County's rights-of-way, but even if it does, Section 361.01 authorizes electric utilities to use eminent domain to obtain easements they require, both on public and private lands, and COVB can obtain the easements it needs to continue providing service in the disputed area.

The County's Authority to Enter into Franchise Agreements Does Not Include the Power to Prevent an Electric Utility from Providing Service in its Commission-Approved Service Area or to Designate Which Utility can Serve

The County clearly has the right to adopt reasonable rules and regulations for utilities that utilize its rights-of-way and has other rights that generally are associated with the powers to franchise. However, the County's franchise authority does not include the ability to dictate which electric utility can serve in a given area. The Grid Bill emphatically reserves that jurisdiction to the Commission and renders the powers and jurisdiction of all other governmental entities, including counties subordinate to the Commission's "exclusive and superior" jurisdiction, as section 366.04(1), Florida Statutes, states that the Commission's jurisdiction is "exclusive and superior to that of . . . counties."

The County's assertion that it can unilaterally assign the disputed area to a utility other than COVB raises antitrust issues, as noncompetitive agreements must be approved by the Commission.³ Anticompetitive conduct is only entitled to state action immunity from antitrust liability if: (1) the conduct is performed pursuant to a clearly articulated policy of the state to displace competition with regulation; and (2) the conduct is closely supervised by the state.⁴ The State's articulated policy is that the Commission shall regulate and supervise service territories of electric utilities. FECA believes that if the County attempted to unilaterally award an exclusive, noncompetitive service territory to a utility that did not already have approval from the Commission to exclusively serve the area, the County's actions could violate anti-trust laws.

Ironically, even if the County were able to award the area to another utility, FECA believes the only electric utility that is immediately adjacent to the disputed area is FPL. Of course FPL is expressly prohibited from serving the disputed area by the territorial agreement/contract that it executed with COVB, and that agreement cannot be modified or terminated without approval from the Commission.⁵ Again, the County's presumption that it can unilaterally award the disputed area to a utility other than COVB is baseless. Likewise, termination of the franchise agreement will have no effect on COVB's rights and obligations to serve the disputed area.

³ See State v. Willis, 310 So. 2d 1 (Fla. 1975).

⁴ California Retail Liquor Dealers Ass'n. v. Midcal Aluminum, Inc., 445 U.S. 97, 100 S. Ct. 937, 63 L.Ed.2d 233 (1980).

⁵ Public Service Commission v. Fuller, 551 So. 2d 1210 (Fla. 1989).

The County Cannot Evict COVB from its Rights-of-Way

In paragraph 27 of the Petition, the County claims that when a franchise agreement expires, the electric utility must remove its facilities from the rights-of-way⁶. The logical extension of this is that an electric utility that operates without a franchise agreement and uses the local government's rights-of-way can be evicted at will, and with no notice. If either of these allegations were true, it would produce an untenable situation for utilities and their ratepayers and would play havoc with the electric grid and utility rates. It also would allow local governments to extort unlimited fees and other concessions from electric utilities that are simply trying to provide electricity to the public at the lowest cost possible by using the existing rights-of-way. This is an extremely important issue for all of Florida's electric cooperatives, many of which operate without any franchise agreements. FECA believes the County is wrong for several reasons, including: an electric utility's ability to use eminent domain to obtain easements they require on both public and private lands; various equitable easements that may exist such as an easement of necessity or a prescriptive easement; and the lack of authority cited by the County. FECA doubts that all, or even a significant portion, of COVB's facilities are located in the County's rights-of-way, but even if they are the COVB has several options for providing service to its ratepayers once the franchise agreement expires.

The County incorrectly assumes that the only authority COVB has to utilize the rights-of-way is obtained from its franchise agreement. The County acknowledges that COVB utilized the

⁶ "Given the conditional nature of a utility's placement of facilities pursuant to a franchise, after the expiration of the Franchise COVB shall no longer have any right to occupy the County's property or utilize any public easements. Thus, COVB shall be required to remove the Electric Facilities unless COVB can negotiate a sale or other transfer to the successor electric service provider." (Footnote omitted.)

County's rights-of-way to provide service before there was a franchise agreement. The COVB's previous use of the rights-of-way should create an equitable easement that allows the COVB to continue using the County's rights-of-way once the franchise agreement expires. In addition, section 361.01, Florida Statutes, authorizes the COVB to use eminent domain to obtain easements they require, including easements in the County's rights-of-way.

The authority cited by the County is not relevant and is not even a final order. The issues in Lee County Electric Cooperative, Inc. v. City of Cape Coral⁷ are whether the utility's facilities are in a private easement or a municipal right-of-way, and whether the city or the co-op must pay to relocate the facilities. There is no mention of the co-op being forced to remove its facilities altogether. In addition, review has been requested at the Florida Supreme Court and it is not a final order. The County's reliance on section 337.401(2), Florida Statutes, for the proposition that it can deny use of its rights-of-way for no cause also is misplaced.⁸ Section 337.401 authorizes local governments to "prescribe and enforce reasonable rules or regulations" for the placement of utility facilities in rights-of-way. While section 337.403 addresses the relocation of utility facilities that interfere with the government's use of its rights-of-way, there is no authority in Chapter 337 for a local government to require a utility to simply remove its facilities from a right-of-way or for a local government to completely prohibit any utility from using its rights-of-way under any circumstance without good cause.

The County Cannot Become an Electric Utility

The County asserts that it can provide electric service to the disputed area. For support, the County cites section 125.01(1)(q), Florida Statutes, which lists numerous services that counties are authorized to provide, including water and wastewater utilities, through municipal services benefit or taxing units. However, neither Section 125.01(1)(q), nor any other subsection of Chapter 125 authorizes counties to own or operate electric utility systems. FECA notes that section 125.3401, Florida Statutes, also addresses a county's ability to purchase or sell water, sewer, and wastewater reuse utilities. Noticeably absent from both sections is any reference to electric utilities or the provision of electric service to the public. Based upon a basic tenant of statutory construction, expressio unius est exclusio alterius, the listing of the other utility services excludes electric utility services, and therefore Chapter 125 does not authorize the County to provide electric service to the public.

⁷ Fla. L. Weekly D1082 (Fla. 2d DCA May 23, 2014).

⁸ Paragraph 23 of the Petition.

Conclusion

The Grid Bill gives the Commission exclusive jurisdiction to determine which electric utility shall serve a given area or specific customers. The County cannot unilaterally select an electric utility to replace COVB and the County cannot become an electric utility. Therefore, the declaratory relief sought by the County cannot be granted and the Petition should be dismissed.

Pursuant to Rule 25-22.0021(7), F.A.C., the Florida Electric Cooperatives Association, Inc., (“FECA”) moves for permission to address the Florida Public Service Commission (“Commission”) regarding the issues raised by the declaratory statement petition filed by the Board of Indian River County (“County”) in this proceeding. The County’s petition raises new issues that are potentially very significant for electric cooperatives. On August 14, 2014, FECA filed a motion for leave to file an amicus curiae memorandum of law and its amicus curiae memorandum addressing the County’s petition. FECA respectfully submits that its participation in the Agenda Conference or any other hearing in which the County’s petition is considered will assist the Commission in its deliberation of the issues raised by the County.
