Dear Commissioner Brown,

I wrote previously inquiring about the complaint I read that citizens issued to you that the electric companies were passing on the federal tax cut benefits to themselves or their parent company and in no way were they sharing with consumers especially on billing. As I wrote to you, I read about these complaints but never the resolution. I found your website confusing and could not find the decision made on this so I am writing for an explanation of what you decided.

Also, in good conscience, I cannot understand how you allow electric companies across the state to violate our electric standards which are not that good anyhow. I notice it is always in the poorer area that people are subjected to horrible violations exposing them to electric rays affecting their lives. People say it is because the electric companies are greasing the commissions hands to allow them to continue to function endangering the population. I do not want to believe it but since I continuously see awful violations in mostly poor areas, I have to accept that you are receiving somekind of benefit to allow this to be all over the state.

I am a photographer travelling the state of Florida which I love to document scenic venues. In my travels I always explore neighborhoods I visit so when I make a statement about awful electric violations, I know what I am talking about. If you want more specific information, I would gladly provide it to you.

Sincerely,

Barbara Rosenzweig
