Dear Florida Public Service Commission,

Solar energy is a growing industry that creates jobs and puts money in people's pockets. It is great for the economy, great for our individual finances and absolutely required for the environment. Solar panels and batteries contribute to the resilience of the electric grid. As we enter hurricane season, Floridians need more tools – not less – in order to weather all the storms that are coming our way.

Before COVID-19, the Sunshine state produced the 4th most electricity from solar panels in the country, and employed over 12,000 people. Now, half, of these jobs at risk in communities across the United States at a time when employment is desperately needed.

Please defend solar workers, business owners, and homeowners from additional uncertainty by preserving net metering here in Florida.

Sincerely,
Barbara Correll
