Subject: FP&L Is Great And Deserves The Whole Increase

Dear Commissioner

I firmly agree with FP&L's rate increase. It costs money to replace wood poles with concrete ones to avoid lengthy outages from a devastating hurricane. And reconductoring is very expensive. I applaud FP&L for the large quantity of reclosers they have been installing to sectionalize outages. I think they should have received the full amount. These same people complaining about 'high' electric bills will also be complaining when their power is out. KEYS Electric (Key West) is replacing ALL their wood poles with concrete or ductile iron poles. I pay a whopping $0.153/kwh there...WAY more than FP&L charges...but there are no broken poles to replace after a hurricane. I would love to address an audience with common sense talk, but who would listen?

Thank you,

Richard Craft
