I'm a Duke energy customer. I don't understand why they again need another rate hike. They are already the fifth highest rates in the nation. They make over a 10% profit. And many homes have converted to net metering solar energy, which is feeding them free energy while we still have to pay taxes and special fees to them so they can use our homes as energy factories to supply them with energy that then they sell back to all of us at a ridiculous price. We are now part of their well-oiled machine, as solar powered homes from which their profiting. If you do decide to allow them to increase rates, then they should pass some of their increased income back to the solar energy homes that are feeding them free energy to sell back to everyone, including us. This is ridiculous to allow to energy to continue this pathway of gouging its customers.
