

SPECIAL REPORT

JANUARY 2000 NO. 2

FLORIDA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Request for review of proposed numbering plan relief for the 904 AREA CODE

In Florida and around the country, the demand for new telephone numbers has been growing at a rapid rate in recent years, resulting in a shortage of available numbers in many areas. There are a variety of factors involved in this growing demand, including population increases and the development of new technology in the form of fax machines, cellular phones, computer modems and pagers. We are using more telecommunications devices that require phone numbers.

However, an even greater problem is the method used to distribute phone numbers. The Federal Communications Commission, the federal regulatory agency for the telephone industry, requires that every local phone company licensed to do business in a state be assigned phone numbers in blocks of 10,000 -- whether they need that many numbers or not. So, if a small company needs only 1,000 phone numbers to meet the needs of its customers, the excess numbers -- 9,000 -- go unused and are not assignable to another carrier.

Recently, the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) was advised by the North American Numbering Plan Administration, the organization that assigns area codes, that the 904 area code is again in danger of exhausting their available supply of phone numbers -- and at a much faster rate than previously thought. For this reason, the PSC has begun considering several possible ways of alleviating the number shortage problem in the area. The area code hearings listed in the column to the right of this report have been scheduled to give consumers, businesses and organizations an opportunity to share their opinions on the proposed area code relief plans for the 904 area code. We encourage those who are affected by the proposed changes to attend the hearings.

The PSC staff is scheduled to make a recommendation to the Commission on August 3, 2000, and the Commission vote on this matter is scheduled for the August 15, 2000, Agenda Conference.
