

SPECIAL REPORT

MAY 2001 NO. 22

Request for review of proposed numbering plan relief for the 941 Area Code

In Florida and around the country, the demand for new telephone numbers has been growing at a rapid rate in recent years, resulting in a shortage of available numbers in many areas. There are many factors involved in this growing demand, including population increases and the development of new technology in the form of fax machines, cellular phones, computer modems, pagers and many more telecommunications devices that require phone numbers.

Another problem is the method used to distribute phone numbers. As required by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the regulatory agency for the telephone industry, the North American Numbering Plan Administration (NANPA) assigns phone numbers to carriers in the 941 area code in blocks of 10,000 -- whether they need that many numbers or not. So, if a small company needs only 1,000 phone numbers to meet the needs of its customers, the excess numbers -- 9,000 -- go unused and are not assignable to another phone company. The Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) has received limited authority from the FCC to initiate number pooling trials in areas which meet certain criteria. Number pooling allows carriers to receive phone numbers in blocks of 1,000 instead of 10,000. Number pooling will be one of the methods of number conservation which PSC staff will explore in area code 941.

Recently, the PSC was advised by NANPA that the 941 area code is in danger of exhausting its available supply of phone numbers. For this reason, the PSC has begun considering several possible ways of alleviating the number shortage problem in the area. The customer hearings listed at the right have been scheduled to give consumers, businesses and organizations an opportunity to share their opinions on the proposed area code relief plans for the 941 area code region. We encourage those who are affected by the proposed changes to attend the hearing in their area.

The PSC staff is scheduled to make a recommendation to the Commission on October 25, 2001, and the Commission vote on this matter is scheduled for the November 6, 2001, Agenda Conference.
