Subject: smart meters

SMART METERS: Don't want them. Didn't ask for them.

I went to the City Commission Meeting of Ormond Beach on September 18, 2012, and heard the following similar reactions.

I called FPL and I was given a song and dance that I cannot opt out, only get on a delay list.

I made my wishes known to FPL by phone, email, and fax.

In return I got called back by a lady representative of FPL with attitude.

This was followed by a letter by another customer advocate Tania Arias, followed by a packet of literature in the mail advocating the safety etc. of same.

However my initial question to them has not been addressed: "Will you FPL guarantee my health from any consequences of having or my proximity to others with a SMART METER?"

The literature generalizes what they want to imply but does NOT reassure or guarantee the effects down the road.

This is bullying. -- Someone in power should follow the money trail back to not only from FPL to the manufacturer, but whoever is so set on getting this meter pushed on us.

I wonder: another stimulus from the great cheese?

Thank you for your attention.
